RAISING ARMY TO RUN CASTRO FROM HIS LAIR

Scheme on Foot To Annihilate Dictator and Open Up Venezuela.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND MEN FOR FILIBUSTER ARMY

Prominent and Wealthy Merchants of New York Backing Scheme Which is Being Worked from London and Paris as Well.

New York, April 1.—The World tomorrow will say:

"One of the largest merchants in New York said last night that arrangements are being perfected here and in Paris and London for a revolution in Venezuela which will annihilate Castro and open up that country to American capital and enterprises.

"A number of rich New York merchants are said to be interested in the movement, which, the promoters declare, will involve the employment of 15,000 soldiers and the expenditure of $5,000,000 in the campaign. President Castro, if the plans do not go astray, is to be either expelled or destroyed, and a native Venezuelan statesman to be installed as his successor.

"In this connection it is said that Castro, anticipating a successful revolution against him sooner or later, has converted some of his alleged $40,000,000 fortune into cash and has sent it to America and France.

"Carlos B. Ferguerdo, Venezuelan consul in New York, said last night at his home that he had heard such an expedition was being organized or promoted, but had been unable to learn nothing definite about it. He said he understood shares in the scheme were being sold.

"'I would like to get hold of one of those shares,' he said. 'I will buy all that are offered.'

"The expedition is to set out shortly from Europe in three large steamships, which are already under contract. They are to carry about 5,000 volunteers, with the following quantities of arms and ammunition: Eight thousand Mauser rifles of the latest pattern, 24,000 rounds of cartridges, 500,000 shells, eight rapid-fire guns, 8,000 army belts, 1,000 officers' swords, 1,000 officers' revolvers, 3,000 machetes and swords, together with other supplies."

SAPP IS KILLED BY HALF-BROTHER

Fence Rail Was the Weapon Causing Death.

John Miles, Prosperous Turpentine Operator Near Baxley, Had Dispute With J. G. Sapp, and During Difficulty Fatal Blow Was Delivered.

Baxley, Ga., April 1.—Reports have just reached here of the killing of J. G. Sapp by his half brother, John Miles, about four miles from this place. Sapp and Miles had some trouble about renting a house. They met today and became involved in a dispute over the matter.

It is said Sapp drew a knife and started wards Miles, whereupon Miles struck m with a fence rail, which resulted fatally for Sapp. Both parties were well known here. Miles is a well-known and prosperous turpentine operator. Both have wives and large families.

Special Mines Police.

Shamokin, Pa., April 1.—A special force of Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron police arrived here this evening to assist the regular force in protecting any miners wishing to work tomorrow. A larger detachment will arrive after Tuesday if necessary. No work was done at the mines today, excepting by firemen, fire bosses and engineers in their regular capacity.

Ohio Rising Rapidly.

Evansville, Ind., April 1.—The Ohio river here is rising rapidly and tonight stands 37.3 feet, which is 2.3 feet above the danger line. All side streams continue to rise and many landings between here and Cairo, Ills., are submerged. Farmers in the bottoms are moving to the hills.

FATHER JOHN ATTACKED WHILE LEAVING ALTAR.

CRONSTADT, April 1.—Father John Sergieff, better known as Father John of Cronstadt, was attacked in the cathedral here today while descending from the altar to administer the sacrament. His assailant struck him with a loaded cane, but Father John dodged the blow, which smashed the cup. The man was arrested. The penalty for violation of the sacrament in Russia is death.

TILLMAN WILL BUCK AGAINST AGREEMENT MADE BY ROOSEVELT

LITTLE DANGER OF BIG STRIKE IN COAL FIELDS

Situation Much Better---Soft Coal Operators Granting Advanced Scale.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 1.—Dispatches from the soft coal fields tonight indicate almost a general announcement from the operators of western Pennsylvania to pay the miners the advance of 5.55 per ton called for in the restoration of the scale of 1903.

With notices posted at the majority of the mines announcing the granting of the scale, the strike in the soft coal field has lost the threatening aspect that has surrounded it since last January.

Despite these notices it was announced from Johnstown that union miners make a demonstration at the mines of the Berwind White Coal Company at Windber tomorrow in an effort to get the non-union miners to come into the organization. The demonstration will consist of a parade, but no trouble is expected.

At Dubois, all the men met today and voted to remain out with the exception of pumpmen, engineers and firemen. The mines of the Fairmont, W. Va., coal section have not entered into the present controversy. Of the forty thousand miners in West Virginia, but 5,000 are affiliated with the Union Mine Workers, about 1,500 are in the panhandle section and these have ceased work.

Announcement was made from Greensburg tonight that the scale had been granted by the operators of fifteen mines in Westmoreland county. In the Pittsburg district there has been little change in the past twenty-four hours. Tomorrow being Mitchell day, the anniversary of the granting of the 8-hour day to the miners, all mines will be closed.

On Tuesday, however, matters are expected to reach a climax. The district conventions scale committee will have in readiness the new scale and then it is expected that most of the operators will sign. This will be a mere formal granting of the advance.

It is expected that among the first of the signers will be F. L. Robbins, chairman of the Pittsburg Coal Company, who has been the leader of the operators in granting the advance. Whatever suspension may follow on the part of the independent operators in the district, it is said, that not over 5,000 of the 68,000 miners in the district will go out. The operators opposed to the advance will hold a meeting Tuesday.

G. A. Magoon, vice president of the Pittsburg and Westmoreland Coal Company and leader of the independents, who will call the meeting, declared today that he could not predict the position they would assume. Miners' officials are confident Robbins' competitors will yield.

Court Review Amendment Prepared by Republicans Doesn't Suit Carolinian.

SAYS FEW DEMOCRATS WILL BE CAUGHT BY IT

Wants Specific Provision That There Shall Be No Suspension of Rate Pending Determination of Appeal Taken to the Courts.

Washington, April 1.—Senator Tillman, who has charge of the railway rate bill in the senate, said tonight that he was not satisfied with the rate review amendment to the measure which was agreed on yesterday at a conference between President Roosevelt, several republican senators who are supporting the bill, and members of the interstate commerce commission.

The senator said he would oppose it on the floor of the senate and he expressed the opinion that not half a dozen of his democratic colleagues would support the amendment.

Senator Tillman declares the amendment does not meet the situation fully, inasmuch as it makes no provision setting forth specifically that there shall be no suspension of the railway rate fixed by the interstate commerce commission, pending the judicial determination of any case which may be appealed from the rate as established.

This is a contention which Senator Tillman and a number of the democratic senators have urged as they argue that a failure to provide absolutely against a suspension of the rate operates to nullify the objects for which the legislation is desired. The senator added that he would prefer to vote for the house bill as it stood than to accept the amendment, for the pending measure gives the right of review where constitutional questions are involved.

The proposed amendment was discussed generally today among groups of democratic senators, but there was no conference on the subject among them.

Senator Spooner was at the white house tonight in conference with President Roosevelt, presumably on matters connected with rate legislation.

Fruit Prospects Bright.

Sparta, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—The fruit growers of this county report prospects for a good yield very encouraging. Orchards in marshy lands suffered by the March freeze to the extent of about 40 per cent, but those on uplands sustained little damage. The average loss throughout the county is estimated at 25 per cent., which is not regarded as serious, as compensation will be found in the superior size of the fruit. Some apprehensions are felt in regard to April weather, but the present outlook for the peach harvest is bright.

TO TOUCH THE HARD HEART OF THE CAPTOR OF BILL. RETURN OF LOST DOGGIE MAY SAVE GIRL VERY ILL

By Dan Carey.

A LITTLE girl of eight or nine years, tossing upon her bed of sickness, with her silken brown tresses scattered aimlessly upon a rumpled pillow, with her pitiful, pale face turned toward the wall of her darkened room, and her large brown eyes brimming with tears as she calls piteously for her little lost pet dog!

The advertisement appeared in The Constitution yesterday morning. It was the most pathetic advertisement that has been printed for years.

LOST—March 12, brown water spaniel dog. Named Bill. Reward, a new $50 gold watch or money for dog or information. By returning dog, you may be the means of saving the life of a little girl, who is very sick. F. C. Rockwell, room 523 Candler building.

Poor little girl! So the kindly old gray-haired doctor, who has stood by your bed for weeks, watched your flushed face and noted your beating pulse, says that now, when the fever has left you, you would get well again if you only had your little pet spaniel to cheer you, to jump about on your bed with his muddy feet, and wag a welcome to your returning spirits.

Sweet little girl! So you will take your most treasured possession, your new gold watch, which you have proudly worn to Sunday school, the only piece of jewelry you ever had, and give it to him who has your dog. You don't know, you sweet little girl, because you are not allowed to see the papers, that while your father has kept faith with you and has really offered the watch, he also wrote, "or money," by which means he intends to have you keep your watch.

Lonely little girl! If he who has your dog knew that he had taken your little playmate; if he knew that you are a stranger in the city, and know few little girls and boys to play with; if he knew how you yearn for another look at the brown, curly hair of your spaniel, how your heart aches for another sight of the tender eyes of the dog; how you long for the cheerful bark; if he knew that you are grieving and have grown paler and thinner and weaker every day since they told you your dog had been lost; if he knew how reproachfully you have looked with your large brown eyes at those who did not take care of your playmate, did not feed him, and pet him and make him feel at home, while you were delirious with the fever—if he knew these things, poor, sweet, lonely little girl with the large brown eyes and silken tresses, he would return your pet to you and tell you to keep your watch.

The advertisement for the brown water spaniel answering to the name of Bill—just the name a little girl would give her pet dog—interested hundreds of The Constitution's readers yesterday, and many called the office during the afternoon to inquire if the little girl had found her dog.

A Constitution reporter was assigned to see the father and get a picture of the little girl who is wasting away because of grief for her dog. There was no picture of the little girl to be had. F. C. Rockwell, evidently her father, was located at 79 West Peachtree street. He is of the firm of Rockwell & Clark, watch-makers and engravers, in the Candler building.

The reporter—he has never been a good newspaper man and he never will be because he weeps too much over the pathetic stories, laughs too much over the funny ones and grows too interested over politics—went to the West Peachtree street residence, revolving in his mind the features of the story of the little girl who was having her first experience with the suffering and struggling, with the sorrow and pain of a world which plays some cruel pranks upon those who have hearts that can ache and souls that can feel the loss of love.

"I am Mr. Rockwell," said the gentleman who answered the ring of the doorbell.

The man who inserted the advertisement in The Constitution for the little girl is about thirty-eight years of age, somewhat slight of stature, dark of complexion and an inclination to baldness.

"I have been interested by your ad-

PRINCE OF WALES TIGER-SHOOTING IN INDIA

A TIGER AND A LEOPARD FALL TO THE PRINCE'S RIFLE NEAR HYDERABAD.

At the Nikonda shooting-camp, near Hyderabad, the Prince shot from a "machan," or platform in a tree. With him was Colonel the Nawab Afzur Ulmulk, one of the Nizam's officers, and a great sportsman. The Prince killed a leopard at the first shot, and a minute afterwards a tiger charged through the jungle. This his Royal Highness killed, with a bullet through the shoulder. The dead leopard can be seen just beyond the tiger.

CHURCH, WIFE AND SON PASS UP PROPHET DOWIE

Elijah the Second Repudiated at Meeting in Which Five Thousand Members of Church at Zion City Took Part.

CHICAGO, April 1.—At a meeting today of 5,000 adherents of the Christian Catholic church, at Zion City, of which John Alexander Dowie is the founder and first apostle, Dowie's authority was repudiated and Wilber Glenn Voliva, who, for some time has been conducting the affairs of the church, elected in his stead.

Mrs. Dowie also repudiated her husband, and their son, Gladstone Dowie, cast his lot with his mother and the new leader, Voliva.

Most of the officials of the church were present at the meeting and many of them denounced Dowie as having deceived the people and wasted their money in extravagance. The meeting, however, refused to hold that he had knowingly erred and John G. Speicher, the former overseer and once second in command, who was recently deposed, peremptorily declared Dowie to be insane. Mrs. Dowie in her address, also upheld that declaration. The casting off of the authority of John Alexander Dowie followed the receipt today of an 800-word telegram from the first apostle, who is in Mexico, in which he peremptorily ordered the discharge of Deacon Alexander Grainger, financial manager of Zion, who has been most aggressive in an effort to place the affairs of the church on a secure foundation. Dowie also announced that a letter would follow in which other officials are named for deposition. A meeting of the Zion council of twelve followed immediately, and it was decided to place the affairs of the church before the members and settle the question of leadership.

HAPPY PAIR WAS MADE ONE ON TENTH FLOOR OF EMPIRE

WILLIAM E. JOHNSON, conductor of an elevator in the Empire building, and Miss Eva Hutchins, of Meriwether county, began the ups and downs of married life yesterday afternoon. They were married at 3 o'clock in the office of Van Astor Batchelor on the tenth floor of the Empire building. Justice of the Peace Walter Ormond officiating. Mr. Batchelor and Harvey Hill were the witnesses.

It was the first wedding to take place in the Empire building and possibly was the most altitudimous ceremony in Atlanta's history. The groom facetiously remarked that it was an affair in high society, in fact in the upper ten. They began their bridal tour on the elevator.

It came about this way: The bride and groom have been secretly in love with each other for some time but possibly for fear of parental objection had not made mention of their determination to knot the tie that binds. So Saturday afternoon the groom to be, who knew that Mr. Batchelor, despite his unconjugal name, is a most ardent supporter, aider, abettor and promoter of the marital estate, sought his aid. He put the case, and Mr. Batchelor said "Sure, you may use my office."

Accordingly arrangement was made with Judge Ormond and Mr. Hill and they assisted in yesterday's wedding. It was a thoroughly informal but nevertheless delightful occasion.

The bride and groom broke the news to their families later.

WILL SPEAK OF PORTO RICO.

Governor Winthrop to Testify Before House Committee.

New York, April 1.—Governor Beekman Winthrop, of Porto Rico, arrived here today from San Juan and proceeded at once to Washington where he has been summoned by Secretary Taft to appear before the insular affairs committee of the house of representatives in relation to Porto Rican questions.

Governor Winthrop said that he would endeavor to give the committee all the information it desired to affairs in the island and general feeling of the natives on questions of public policy. The chief demands of the people of Porto Rico are American citizenship and an elective senate instead of an executive council composed of six Americans and five natives, appointed by the president as at present. The six Americans are also heads of departments.

The island administration, it is said, is opposed to the elective senate idea on the grounds that the island is not yet ready for such a step. Full American citizenship, however, is advocated by all and was suggested by President Roosevelt in his message to congress December 5, 1905.

Governor Winthrop's stay is limited to two weeks.

PARKS' CASE TO BE TRIED.

Pike Superior Court Convenes This Morning.

Barnesville, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—The April term of Pike superior court convenes Monday morning at Zebulon. Judge E. J. Reagan will preside, and Solicitor O. H. B. Bloodworth will represent the interests of the state.

The most important case to be tried is that of J. S. Parks, for killing W. H. Brooks. It will be remembered that Parks shot and killed Brooks about two months ago about a negro laborer. Parks escaped, but was captured about two weeks ago in Meriwether county, and brought to Zebulon and placed in jail.

This trial will attract a great deal of attention, owing to the prominence of the parties concerned.

High Coal for Mexico.

Mexico City, April 1.—The strike of the anthracite coal miners in the United States, it is anticipated, will result in raising the price of coal among all dealers here, whether they are handling native or imported coal.

ESCAPING PERIL OF FALLING CARS HE MEETS DEATH

In Avoiding Danger From Sideswiped Cars Woodall Jumps Before Engine.

Stepping back to escape threatened injury from a "sideswipe" of tottering freight cars, George Washington Woodall, a telegraph operator of the Southern railway, was struck by switching engine 128 of the Western and Atlantic, dragged a distance of 60 feet and terribly mangled, death mercifully ending his suffering upon his arrival at the Grady hospital some thirty minutes after the accident, which occurred at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

G. W. WOODALL,
Who Was Fatally Injured Yesterday at Simpson St. Crossing.

George Woodall was one of the best known telegraph operators and railroad men in Atlanta, having worked in this city off and on for the past seven years. He was only 26 years old. He has been a prominent member of the Order of Railway Telegraph Operators and his popularity was proved by the great throngs of railroad friends that formed almost a constant procession to his late boarding place, the residence of Mrs. Rosa Powell, 257 Simpson street. His father arrived yesterday afternoon from the old Woodall home at Alto, Banks county.

Mr. Woodall had just completed a

BITTEREST FOE OF DEMOCRACY IS TOM WATSON

So He Is Regarded by the Democratic Representatives at Washington.

WATSON ENCOURAGING ENEMIES OF THE SOUTH

Congressmen Sparkman and Davis Discuss Watson's Views As Regard to Reducing the Representation of the South in Congress.

By Jos: Ohl.

Washington, D. C., April 1.—(Special.)—While Georgians here in Washington are devoting much of their time to speculating over the remarkable refusal of Mr. Hoke Smith to declare himself when asked to express his choice between Senator Bacon and Tom Watson, public men from other states continue to discuss Watson's equally remarkable—though more easily understood—endorsement of the Kelfer-Crumpacker programme for reducing the representation of the south in congress and the electoral college.

They regard this as more easily understood for the reason that in their opinion Watson is so bliter in his enmity for the democratic party that he would willingly sacrifice all the best interests of the south if by so doing he could accomplish the practical overthrow of democracy.

"If it is to be judged on its merits, Mr. Watson's statement has, of course, not a leg to stand on," said Representative Sparkman, of Florida, in discussing the Watson utterances. "But we have had evidence in the past of the lengths to which he has been willing to go in the hope of accomplishing the overthrow of the democratic party, and the animus of this last declaration of his is in line with the policy he pursued in the last presidential election."

Mr. Small's Views.

"When Thomas Watson asserted that it made no difference to Georgia or the people of the south whether the south has less representatives in congress and the electoral college, he must have spoken jocularly or ignorantly," said Representative Small, of North Carolina. "The south is intensely interested in this question and does not believe that either the leaders of the republican party or the voters who compose that party will, in this day of concord and sectional fraternity, tolerate the perpetration of such unjust legislation."

But while he believes with others that there has been no probability of the republican party making serious effort to perpetrate such an outrage upon the south, Mr. Small believes with other southerners that division on this question among the people of the south may prove an incentive to agitation at the north which may result disastrously to the whole south.

Speaking further of the folly of the suggestion that the south is not vitally interested in retaining her present representation—the representation to which she is clearly entitled—Mr. Small said:

"To say that the number of representatives from any section does not affect the influence or power wielded by that section in the national congress is to state an obvious fallacy. The south would feel the effect of any reduction in a most definite and positive form.

How Sections Are Affected.

"To illustrate: Take the republican party and its relation to the several sections of the country. There was a time when the congressional representation from the eastern states dominated the policies of that party in congress, and that section furnished the principal candidates of that party, both for congressional offices and for president. As the center of population has gradually moved west, so has the sectional influence which dominates that party moved likewise, and today the great republican party is dominated in its policies by the great middle west—the great Mississippi valley. Mr. Reed was the last speaker from the east which that party furnished, and under normal conditions the

Are the People Entitled to Know the Composition of Remedies?

There is one man who stands out honestly and squarely upon the merits of his well-known remedies. Dr. R. V. PIERCE, who is author of one of the best-known medical books, the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," which has reached its 66th Edition, over Two Million One Hundred Thousand Copies having been printed, and who is head of one of the best Sanitariums and Surgical Institutes in the country, was the first physician to use pure, triple-refined glycerine in the preparation of his vegetable compounds instead of alcohol.

Nearly Forty Years Ago,

Dr. Pierce discovered that chemically pure glycerine of proper strength is a better solvent and preservative of the active medicinal principles residing in most of our indigenous or native medicinal plants than is alcohol. As its use is entirely unobjectionable, while alcohol as is well-known when used even in small portions, for a protracted period, does lasting injury to the human system, especially in the case of delicate women and children. He found that the glycerine, besides being entirely harmless, possesses intrinsic medicinal properties, of great value. Its nutritive properties, Dr. Pierce believes, far surpass those of cod-liver oil, entitling it to favorable consideration in all cases of incipient consumption, especially when it is combined with the active medicinal principles extracted from Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Stone root, Golden Seal root and Bloodroot, as in his ready put-up medicine the "Golden Medical Discovery." Besides its superior nutritive properties, glycerine is a very valuable demulcent and thereby greatly enhances the remedial action of all the foregoing roots in the cure of severe coughs, bronchial, throat, laryngeal and other kindred affections of the air-passages and lungs. In all "wasting diseases," where there is loss of flesh and gradual "running-down" of the system, the glycerine certainly plays an important part in lessening the breaking-down and wasting of tissue, and in promoting assimilation and increase of bodily weight. It is, in Dr. Pierce's estimation, a powerful reconstructive agent in all cases of impaired vitality and especially valuable when associated and combined with such superior alteratives and tonics as in "Golden Medical Discovery." Its wonderful solvent properties also play an important part in the cure of gall-stones, severe constipation, with dry and almost impacted stools. Glycerine is also one of the very best anti-ferments and as such counteracts the excessive fermentation of foods in the stomach, present in most cases of indigestion or dyspepsia. Thus the pain, belching of noxious gas, bloating and other disagreeable symptoms are overcome and the Stone root, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot and other ingredients of "Golden Medical Discovery" are greatly assisted in their action in completing a cure. As will be seen from the writings of Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and other high authorities, these agents can confidently be depended upon for the most positive, curative action in all atonic, or weak, states of the stomach, accompanied with distressing indigestion or dyspepsia. Read from the writings of the authorities quoted, under headings of Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Queen's root and Mandrake root and you will find that all these ingredients are recommended as remedies for indigestion or dyspepsia. All are ingredients of "Golden Medical Discovery," combined in such porportions that each enhances the curative action of all the others.

GOLDEN SEAL ROOT
(Hydrastis).

Professor Roberts Bartholow, M. D., was the first of the old school of medicine to publicly recommend (in 1887) Hydrastis—or Golden Seal root. At that time Dr. Pierce had used this preparation as a principal ingredient in his "Golden Medical Discovery" for over twenty years. Since then Hydrastis has become of National reputation as a remedy for mucous membrane diseases, especially in throat ailments and in inflammatory conditions of the lining membranes.

GOLDEN SEAL ROOT
(Hydrastis Canadensis).

Dr. Roberts Bartholow, Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, a recognized authority on Materia Medica and Therapeutics, says of Hydrastis (Golden Seal): "Very useful as a stomachic tonic (stomach tonic) and in atonic dyspepsia. Cures gastric catarrh (catarrh of stomach) and headaches accompanying same. In catarrh of the gall duct and jaundice, it is of especial utility. Constipation, dependent upon different deficient secretions, with hard and dry stools, may be overcome by the remedy. Chronic catarrh of the intestines, even if it has proceeded to ulceration, is remarkably benefited by Hydrastis."

The foregoing is certainly a wonderfully strong endorsement of one of Dr. Pierce's chief ingredients used in his "Golden Medical Discovery."

From "Organic Medicines," by Grover Coe, M. D., of New York, we extract the following: "Hydrastis (Golden Seal) exercises an especial influence over mucous surfaces. Upon the liver it acts with equal certainty and efficacy. As a cholagogue (liver invigorator), it has few equals. In affections of the spleen, and abdominal viscera generally, it is an efficient and reliable remedy. Also in scrofula, glandular diseases generally, cutaneous eruptions, indigestion, debility, diarrhœa and dysentery, constipation, piles and all morbid and critical discharges."

QUEEN'S ROOT
(Stillingia Sylvatica).

Prof. John King, M. D., says: "An alterative (blood-purifier) unsurpassed by few if any other of the known alteratives; most successful in skin and scrofulous affections. Beneficial in bronchial affections — permanently cures bronchitis—relieves irritations—an important cough remedy—coughs of years' standing being cured. Aids in blood-making and nutrition, and may be taken without harm for long periods."

R. Bartholow, M. D., L. L. D., says: "Stillingia has long been in repute as an alterative and employed for scrofula in its various forms. Most satisfactory results have been obtained from its use in syphilitic affections. Recommended in habitual constipation, torpidity of liver, jaundice, piles, ascites (dropsy), due to hepatic (liver) changes or obstructions."

STONE ROOT (Collinsonia Canadensis).

"Alterative, tonic, stimulant. Valuable in laryngitis—'ministers' sore throat.' In diseases of stomach and intestines—improves appetite, promotes flow of gastric juice; tonic effect upon organs involved. A good remedy in indigestion, dyspepsia, chronic gastritis, increasing the secretion from kidneys and skin."—American Dispensatory.

"There is no doubt of Collinsonia's action on the urinary organs. It has cured disorders supposed to be due to gravel, catarrh of the bladder and dropsy from deficient action of the kidneys. Cures irritation of the cardiac (heart) nerves, with rapid, regular or irregular beating. Useful in valvular diseases."—Edwin M. Hale, M. D., Prof. Materia Medica in Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago.

Wm. Paine, M. D., Author of Paine's Epitome of Medicine, New School Practice of Medicine and of the Medical Properties and uses of Concentrated Medicines, writing of Collinsonin (the active medicinal principle residing in Collinsonia Canadensis, or Stone root), says: "I, not long since, had a patient who was so much oppressed with a valvular disease of the heart that his friends were obliged to carry him up-stairs. He, however, gradually recovered under the influence of Collinsonin, and is now attending to his buisness. Heretofore physicians knew of no remedy for the removal of so distressing and so dangerous a malady. With them it was all guess-work, and it fearfully warned the afflicted that death was near at hand. Collinsonin unquestionably affords relief in such cases, and in most instances effects a cure." He further says: "In a case of persistent ascites (dropsy), where the ordinary remedies fail to afford anything more than a temporary relief, Collinsonin produced a permanent cure."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., in his treatise entitled "Specific Medication," says: "Collinsonia (Stone root), is a specific in 'ministers' sore throat' (chronic laryngitis)." He continues: "It proves beneficial in other cases of chronic laryngitis, in chronic bronchitis and phthisis (consumption), allaying irritation and checking cough. It also exerts a favorable influence upon the digestive processes, improving the appetite, facilitating digestion and acting as a general tonic. It passes off through the kidneys and exerts a tonic influence upon the entire extent of the urinary tract. I regard it as one of the most direct and valuable agents of the Materia Medica and one that will give satisfaction to whoever employs it."

The above are strong endorsements of one of the most valuable ingredients contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," viz., Collinsonia, or Stone root. Its virtues, however are not overextolled, as we can attest from our experience and observation in watching the beneficial action of the "Discovery" in heart affections, laryngitis, bronchitis, incipient consumption and other ailments noted above.

"Collinsonia stimulates the stomach, acts as a tonic to enfeebled muscular structure of the heart and has a direct influence upon atonic (weak) and dilated or otherwise impaired conditions of the veins. It is a specific remedy in piles. In catarrhal gastritis, where the circulation is defective, it, either alone or combined with hydrastis, is of first importance. They increase the appetite and greatly improve the digestion and assimilation of food. Good for rectal pains and piles of the pregnant woman. Is a heart tonic of direct and permanent influence. Excellent in the bicycle heart, in rheumatic inflammation and clergyman's sore throat."—F. Ellingwood, M. D.

REMARKS. We can not refrain, at this point, from calling attention to the wonderfully beneficial effects produced by Stone root in valvular and other diseases of the heart, as described by Drs. Paine, Hale and Ellingwood. The latter, it will be noted, says of it, "is a heart tonic of direct and permanent influence." He especially recommends it for the so-called "bicycle heart" or, in other words, for all those cases of irregular heart action caused by over exertion. The wonderful regulating and strengthening effect produced upon the heart by "Golden Medical Discovery" is accounted for by the presence in it of the active medicinal principle of Stone root, and is also partly to be credited to the Golden Seal root contained in it. The Golden Seal root is a most valuable heart tonic, and in fact exerts a tonic effect upon all of the muscular tissues of the system, and, naturally it follows that the heart, being mostly composed of muscular tissue, is favorably affected and strengthened thereby.

BLACK CHERRYBARK (Prunus Virginiana).

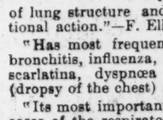

Roberts Bartholow says: "Wild Cherrybark is an excellent stomach tonic; it has long been held in great esteem in domestic practice as a remedy in catarrhal states of the bronchial mucous membrane and in phthisis (consumption)." "The strup is much used as an ingredient in cough mixtures."

"The tonic influence of this agent is more markedly apparent when it is administered in disease of the respiratory apparatus (breathing organs) of a subacute (mild) or (lingering) chronic character. A common remedy for chronic coughs, the cough of nervous patients without apparent cause; is popular in the treatment of mild cases of palpitation. Palpitation from disturbed condition of the stomach is directly relieved by it."—F. Ellingwood, M. D.

BLOODROOT (Sanguinaria Canadensis).

"Stimulates digestive organs, increases action of heart and arteries—stimulant and tonic. Very valuable as a cough remedy—acts as a sedative—further valuable as an alterative."—American Dispensatory.

"Overcomes congestion of the lungs, after severe cold in the chest from exposure. Given in bronchial coughs, in membraneous croup. It equalizes the circulation of the entire system, inducing warmth in the skin and in the extremities. It will assist in overcoming hepatization (solidification) of lung structure and restoring normal tone and normal functional action."—F. Ellingwood, M. D.

"Has most frequently been employed in incipient phthisis, bronchitis, influenza, pneumonia, croup, asthma, diphtheria, in scarlatina, dyspnœa (short breath), dyspepsia, hydrothorax (dropsy of the chest) and jaundice."—Edwin M. Hale, M. D.

"Its most important therapeutical effects are witnessed in diseases of the respiratory (breathing) organs. Used in croup, in functional amenorrhœa (absence of menses), chronic nasal catarrh and nasal polypi."—R. Bartholow, M. D.

future occupants of that high office will continue to come from the west. Again, today the principal committees of the house which control legislation upon all essential questions are made up from the viewpoint of the middle west, and not from the Atlantic seaboard.

The Power of the West.

"As another illustration, I may mention the proposed legislation commonly known as the 'subsidy bill,' intended to revive the American merchant marine. The bill has passed the senate at this session and is now pending before the house committee on merchant marine, and it is comparatively mild as contrasted with bills pending in former congresses on this subject. Yet, because this legislation does not find favor with the rank and file of the republican party in the middle west, it has not yet been reported out of the committee and it is probable that a sufficient number of republicans from the middle west will oppose it to prevent a favorable report. The speaker is also said to look with disfavor upon the bill.

"It is useless to give further illustrations to prove that any reduction in the representatives in congress from the south would serve materially to impair the influence of that section of the country in congress."

Representative Hay, of Virginia.

Representative Hay, of Virginia, sees in the Watson proposition a desire to strike a fatal blow to the democratic islation to the people of the states makes party. Discussing the proposition laid down by Mr. Watson in the March issue of his magazine, Mr. Hay said:

"It is most important to the people of every state to have equal representation in congress with all the other states. The growing importance of federal legislation makes it necessary that the people of each state should be fully represented. To cut down the representation of any state would destroy the proper balance of power in the electoral college; and to lessen the representation of the south would be fatal to the democratic party."

ESCAPING PERIL HE MET DEATH

night's work as operator at the North avenue yard and was returning to his boarding house at 257 Simpson street. Just as he arrived at the railroad crossing at Simpson street, he saw several freight cars in tow of switch engine 1630 of the Southern railway, jump a flattened flange of a switch and start plowing their way across the ties. As the cars left the rails they began to sway from side to side and threatened to fall over. Mr. Woodall, who was standing close to the track from which these freight cars had jumped, stepped backward for fear they might fall on him. In doing so, he stepped on the tracks of the Western and Atlantic and did not notice switch engine No. 128 of this road approaching. It was stated by those near the crossing that Engineer Williams of locomotive 128, was also watching the tottering cars and failed to see Mr. Woodall.

Dragged Sixty Feet.

The switch engine struck Mr. Woodall and as the locomotives carry a step rather than a cow catcher, instead of being thrown from the track the man was caught under the protruding step and in this way mashed, mangled and dragged 60 feet. Later it was reported that Mr. Woodall said that he tried to cry out and attract the attention of the engineer, but being on the opposite side of the track was unable to do so.

When Woodall was taken from under the wheels of the engine, his condition was a fearful one. But never for a moment during the awful ordeal did the man lose consciousness or his presence of mind. As he was carried to the side of the tracks it was found that one leg was crushed to a pulp and almost severed, while another terrible gash in his abdomen showed where he had been cut by the front wheels of the engine while he was being dragged.

From the first he realized that life was only a matter of a few minutes. But he kept rational to the very last and had never a word to say of himself, but talked constantly of others and first of all asked that his two brothers, who lived with him at 257 Simpson street, be hurried to his side as he wanted to live long enough to see them again. A messenger was sent for these two and with them came Mrs. Rosa Powell, who keeps the boarding house and was also a great friend of the young man. Both of these brothers, L. C. and A. Gordon Woodall, when they arrived at the side of the dying man, found him stretching a hand of welcome to each. "I am mighty sorry it happened," he said, "and it is going to be hard on the folks at home. Tell mother that I am ready to go. You must do all you can to comfort them, and tell father that I want to thank him for all that he has done for me. Do everything you can for them and I wish you could both get out of the railroad business. Death comes when you least expect it. Give my love to all of the folks at home and tell them I would give anything if I could just see them once more, but I know it cannot be. I know, too, that they will want to have me back there with them and I want to go. I want to be out there with the home folks, near the old farm, for its lots more restful than the city."

Those who saw this scene say that the victim of the accident showed remarkable nerve and bravery and seemed absolutely to forget himself in trying to make things easier for those whom he had left at the old home in Banks county. When he saw Mrs. Powell he said as she stroked his forehead and tried to comfort him: "No one knows of the agony I am suffering and it would mean everything to me if you could stay with me until the last, for it won't be long."

Father is Summoned.

Morgan G. Woodall, father of the young man, was telegraphed to at his home in Alto, and arrived in Atlanta yesterday afternoon. He will take the body back to Alto this morning for burial at his old home. Both of the brothers, who live in this city, are employed in the yards of the Central railroad. In addition to these are two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Cook, of Norcross, and Miss Ophelia Woodall, of Alto, Ga.

An inquiry will be held this morning. One man, who was on the cars of the Western and Atlantic train which struck Mr. Woodall, but who refused to give his name, stated that Engineer Williams saw the young man step on the track, but thought that he had gotten across as he had plenty of time to do so. Engineer Williams and Conductor Maddox of this train, will report for a hearing and inquiry into the accident this morning.

TO TOUCH HIS HEART SAID GIRL WAS ILL

vertisement," said the reporter. "I want to help you find that dog."

"Thank you," replied Mr. Rockwell, simply by rather sadly.

"How is the little girl today?" asked the reporter, and there were tears in his eyes and sobs in his voice.

Mr. Rockwell leaned forward slightly and spoke in a confidential tone.

"Between you and me," he answered, "there isn't any little girl."

"Do you mean to tell me that no little girl is wasting away to a shadow and crying out her sweet eyes because her pet dog is lost?"

"Yes, I mean to say that," replied Mr. Rockwell, and he smiled a little.

"Why did you insert this advertisement?" questioned the newspaper man.

"I thought it was pathetic and——"

"It is," interrupted the reporter.

"You see," continued Mr. Rockwell, "I have spent $12 advertising for this dog. I thought I would take a last shot at it and get an advertisement that would appeal to people and attract attention."

"I think you are going to get it," the reporter told him. "Probably on the front page."

The real facts are that Mr. Rockwell, who is a northern man and a bachelor was presented some time ago while in Hot Springs with a beautiful water spaniel. He named the dog Bill and has raised him from a puppy.

At night this bachelor would put on his house slippers and his smoking jacket light his pipe and read, while Bill stretched himself in front of the glowing embers in the grate and dozed away the evening hours.

At other times this childless man would grow tired of reading, or his pipe would bite his tongue. In such moments as these Bill would cock up his pretty ears, look into his master's eyes and say as plainly as a dog ever did: "Let's talk together some." A change of the man's expression, a snap of his fingers, and Bill would leap into his master's lap to be petted and talked to, to wag his tail and laugh with his eyes in response until finally, growing tired, he would blink sleepily into the fire and go to sleep, while the master would close his eyes and give himself over to those peaceful reveries for which only bachelors have time.

On March 12, while Mr. Rockwell was at work, Bill disappeared from his home at 79 West Peachtree street, and since then the master has been lonely. He inserted several advertisements asking for the return of his dog but did not get responses. Saturday he determined to make a last effort, and to insert an advertisement that would reach out and touch the heartstrings of the people. To his bachelor mind it appeared that the most pathetic thing in the world was a little child, ill and lonely and pining for the return of her lost pet.

The advertisement has its pathetic turn after all, even though there is no little girl. There is a love between a bachelor and his dog that is real and true and lasting. He isn't happy without his dog and his pipe. He said yesterday that he would make good on the new gold watch offer, and therefore, if anyone has his dog, for goodness sake give it back to him, and let's think about something else.

LIVES CRUSHED OUT BY AUTOS

Two Persons Killed and Another One Seriously Injured.

New York, April 1.—Two people were killed and a number of others injured in a series of automobile accidents in this city and suburbs today.

Frederick Cultman, the 6-year-old son of William Cultman, assistant treasurer of the Metropolitan opera house, was killed in West Sixty-fifth street.

On Pelham road, New Rochelle, two sisters, Mrs. Alvina Stein, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. George J. Kuchler, a resident of the village, sustained injuries from which the former died a few hours later at a hospital.

Mrs. Stein had come on to celebrate her sister's thirty-third birthday. Mrs Kuchler is a member of a family prominent in New Rochelle affairs, one of her sons being an alderman and the other a police commissioner. The women were walking in the roadway and did not hear the approach of the automobile, which struck them, and in which were riding two men and three women.

Mrs. Stein and Mrs. Kuchler were hurled with terrific force against the stone abutments of a railroad bridge. Mrs. Kuchler's skull was fractured near the base and she suffered serious internal injuries.

Mrs. Stein's left arm was broken and crushed and she also suffered internal injuries. Both were taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Kuchler's recovery is not looked for. The automobile stopped and one of the men alighted. He was seen to run back, take a hurried look at the prostrate forms and then hurriedly reenter the machine, which was driven away at a rapid rate. The police tonight claim to have the number of the car and are trying to trace its ownership.

SPEAKER'S RACE IN SISTER STATE

Alabama Is Greatly Interested in the Contest.

Unless Goodwyn Has Easy Sailing, Martin, Another Montgomery Man, May Enter—Pitts Has Hankerings That Are Likely to Get Him in the Running.

Montgomery, Ala., March 31.—(Special.) Now that several of the counties have nominated representatives to the legislature the prospective race for the speakership of the next house begins to loom up as a bidder for more than ordinary attention. Tyler Goodwyn, of Montgomery; Joseph J. Arnold, of Calhoun, and John Wallace, of Madison, are so far pretty well in the running, with A. D. Pitts, of Selma, feeling somewhat like it. However, the real interesting part of the situation is that possibly there will be a movement later on to get W. L. Martin, of Montgomery, in the fight, even if his county man, Mr. Goodwyn, is in already.

Mr. Martin made a very positive statement about his position on the race question during his campaign, writing in a general letter that he would be in favor of giving that power to the state desired by the interstate commission to meet the conditions as now seen by the president of the nation and the Comer following in the state. It is not known to what the Martin movement is attributed, except the possibility that he is to be regarded as a Comer man. Mr. Martin was formerly attorney general of the state and codified the laws some years ago.

In the event that any contingency does get Mr. Martin in the race the speakership will become a matter of far reaching interest. Mr. Goodwyn, who has annouñced and has so far the support of the Montgomery delegation, is aggressive and progressive, full of fight and possessed of ability. He has one little defect in his democratic record, but having gone through the stormy period of the Kolb regime and free silver, he is not alone there. Mr. Arnold will come down with a reputation made as a friend of the common schools, now a very popular feature, and a new alignment among the conservative element as well as the freight rate following. Mr. Wallace is one of the best known men of the state and has a following among all the interests. Mr. Pitts is a Comer man and let it be known in the campaign he made that such were his sentiments. In fact every man in the talking is well established upon some sort of a rate platform and it seems that all are waiting to get off in a bunch a little later on. And others are yet to come. It is rumored that one of the men from Jefferson's seven, will also have an eye to the seat of honor, and possibly one from Mobile.

KILLING FOLLOWS FIGHT OVER BEER

One Man Slain and Five Others Badly Hurt.

Finlanders Seized American During the Difficulty, and Threw Him Into a Bonfire, Which They Had Built in the Woods.

Charleroi, Pa., April 1.—In a quarrel over kegs of beer in the woods at Twilight, a mining village near here, today, one man was shot to death, two others were so badly wounded that they are thought to be fatally hurt, a fourth was slashed with a knife, a fifth was seriously burned about the face and hands and a sixth was seriously wounded by a bullet.

The dead man is Lewis Williams, 38 years old. The two wounded by bullets, and who are expected to die, are J. S. and Oscar Schneider, brothers. The three others that were hurt are Joseph Younghiller, shot wound, Michael Solomon, cut, both Finlanders, and David Anderson, an American, burned. William Hart, also an American, is alleged to have fired the bullet that killed Williams. Anderson, after his injuries had been dressed, was placed in the Charleroi lockup.

The men went to the woods this afternoon with kegs of beer and began a carousal. The trouble is said by Anderson to have started when the Americans tried to persuade the Findlanders, who had already furnished two kegs of beer, to go and get a third. The Finlanders refused and a fight began.

Threw Him Into the Fire.

It is alleged that Solomon and Younghiller seized Anderson and threw him into the bonfire which the men had built. The other Americans rescued Anderson. Revolvers and knives were then used and Anderson says that Hart in trying to shoot the Finlanders fired at his own countrymen. Hart was the only man who escaped injury in the battle.

The shots were heard by the police who went to the scene to investigate. They found Williams dying from a bullet wound in the back, while the two Schneiders, Younghiller, Solomon and Anderson were lying on the ground. Williams was removed to the office of the coal company at Twilight, where he died in a short time. Physicians were summoned from Charleroi to take care of the injured men. They ordered that the two Schneiders be removed at once to a hospital. Younghiller and Soloman were taken to their homes in Bellevernon, while Anderson, after his burns had been bandaged, was placed in the lockup here. A posse is scouring the country in search of Hart.

Carved Face of Antagonist.

Macon, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—John Clark, a negro, is in the city hospital suffering from a face carved up fearfully. He was taken up from Tennille last night and today his entire face has the appearance of a butcher's chop. A razor was used by another negro named Will Gardener. The difficulty started over the affections of both for Clark's wife and Gardener is at large.

Painters Will Organize.

Macon, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—A meeting of all white painters of Macon will be held tomorrow morning in the paint shop of W. H. Britt in Wall street at 7 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a local union. Officers will be chosen and an agreement will be entered whereby the men will work nine hours a day instead of ten without reduced wages.

New Realty Company.

Macon, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—A charter has been asked from Bibb superior court for the Columbus Realty and Loan Company. A capital stock of $25,000 will be entered and the concern will be devoted to real estate transactions and improvements. The members of the firm are E. A. Horne, Joseph Bloch, A. and N. M. Block and Sam Guthman.

Committees Appointed.

Columbus, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—President J. Ralston Cargill has appointed the committees who are to raise the $1,500 pledged by the board of trade towards the $4,500 fund to be expended in advertising Columbus. The committees will meet tomorrow afternoon at the board of trade building and map out their work. Five or ten years ago the idea of spending about $5,000 in advertising the city's resources would have been regarded as altogether out of the question—canvassing committees had to work hard then to secure $500 for such purposes—but now the announcement that such an amount will be raised and spent is accepted simply as a detail of the year's work with the board of trade, and the money will be quickly given by the business interests.

FRANCE PLEASED BY AGREEMENT

Foreign Minister Bourgeois Will Address Chamber on Subject.

Paris, April 1.—Foreign Minister Bourgeois, as an early duty will address the chamber of deputies, setting forth the government's view, as to the result of the conference on Moroccan reforms at Algeciras.

The agreement is hailed with satisfaction by officials and by the public press, which was weary of the prolonged controversy and the disturbing possibilities of war. The view in official quarters is that France secures a fair degree of success on the principal questions relating to the police and state bank. However, it is recognized that neither France nor Germany has secured all that was wanted. France's desire to have control of the police was partially realized in her being allowed to police the important Atlantic ports, including Mogador, which Germany was suspected as coveting, and also with her ally, Spain, to police Tangier and Casablanca.

On the other hand it is thought that Germany's desire to internationalize Morocco was partly realized, as the Franco-Spanish police is subordinated to an inspector who will report to the diplomatic corps. Thus both countries in a measure were successful, but each is so safeguarded that neither will be able to claim a victory. France's pacific penetration of Morocco, it is thought, is remotely postponed, as it is likewise to the cream of the vast northwest African empire. Aside from the details of the great achievement, the officials consider that the agreement between France and Germany assures the preservation of the peace of Europe.

Wesleyan Campus Involved.

Macon, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—The litigation which has arisen between the city council and General Ed Huguenin over Madison street property has been found to involve Wesleyan college campus, and the effort on the part of the city to open the streets through the college square would seriously impair the beauty of the grounds, and work great disadvantage to the institution. The proposition has aroused numbers of the old residents in the vicinity, and especially the friends of Wesleyan, who state that this property has been standing as an unbroken college square since 1859. The fight between General Huguenin and the city council over the title to the grounds is creating no little interest in Macon.

HIGH CHARACTER NEED OF NEGROES

Bishop Doane Makes Address at Tuskegee Institute.

Distinguished Prelate Tells Booker Washington's Students That the Chief Help of the African Race Must Come From Themselves.

Tuskegee, Ala., April 1.—(Special.)—The first exercises in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute took place today. At 2 o'clock this afternoon, Right Rev. William Croswell Doane, bishop of Albany, N. Y., preached the anniversary sermon.

Although guests have partly begun to arrive and the regular exercises of the celebration will not take place until Tuesday evening, the chapel was crowded with persons to hear the sermon of the distinguished prelate.

He has long been a friend of Hampton and Tuskegee institutes. This was, however, his first visit to Tuskegee.

Among other things, Bishop Doane said:

"The white people have the tremendous advantage of centuries of cultivation, of education and of liberty, while you are only within the century emerging from illiteracy and bondage, and whatever gives us the advantage gives us also opportunity and responsibility, but I am equally clear that the hope of the negro is in the negro himself. Lifted above the conditions of ignorance and the circumstances of bondage, a new negro race is coming, and coming to the front, in America. The progress is as instructive as it is characteristic.

"Hampton began, as the effort of one man; white in soul and nature as he was in complexion—to meet the new condition of the freemen, plunged without preparation into the obligations of citizenship. But the result of Hampton is Tuskegee, and the black man, founder and teacher, as well as student, is preparing himself for his share, and it must be a large share in the uplifting of his own race. Just as the hope of what we call foreign missionary work depends for its success upon the training of a native ministry, Africans for Africa and Japanese for Japan, so the hope of the elevation of the black people, depends upon the raising from among themselves, not teachers only, but men and women of high character and social influence which they can impart to their fellows, not as subject lessons, but as leaven to raise and quicken the race.

This is the Real Gift.

"This is the real gift for your hands to give: To go and be a power among your own people, staying with them; not wandering away, living lives that shed light upon the ignorance, and spreading influence through the dullness and the degradation of the neighborhood where you may be, and that influence must make for religion, for righteousness and for reality.

"Herein, specifically, it seems to me, Tuskegee has justified itself, and made its claim for renewed confidence and increased support. As I read its story, quite beyond its romance, the record of its reality, chapter after chapter written by men and women who have been trained here, it tells how they have been penetrated by its spirit and its power, and given to others what they have gained themselves. What has been wrought out here in these five-and-twenty years is good enough for a backward look of amazement and thanksgiving. But our faces turn forward as well. We look on. To 'be fruitful and multiply' was not only spoken of the first man and woman, but it is spoken with deeper meaning to such as you are for the production, the perpetuation, the perfection of this higher life, until all Ethiopia, here in the country to which you were transplanted, and in the far-away continent from which you came, and which is still dark, till all Ethiopia shall stretch forth hands of service; hands that pray, and hands that give to the God who made you in His image and redeemed you with His blood."

Negroes Donate to Fair.

Macon, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—At a meeting of Macon negroes last night arrangements were made for raising $2,000 to be devoted to holding the negro state fair next fall. W. G. Johnson, J. W. Holly and W. O. Emory were placed in charge of the enterprise here and will work in cooperation with the Savannah negroes in making the colored fair a success. The proposition to hold the fair in Macon will be laid before the city council at Tuesday night's session and this city may be chosen.

Ask for Receiver.

Columbus, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—James A Lewis, J. D. Smith and J. M. Britt, creditors of the old Hotel Racine Company, which formerly ran the Hotel Racine, have filed a petition asking that a receiver be appointed for the company, alleging that the company owes them $16,000 and that its total indebtedness is $19,000. Judge Little set April 14 as the time for the hearing and granted an order temporarily restraining other creditors from proceeding with their suits against the old company. This litigation in no way affects the present management of the hotel. Messrs. E. H. Racine and R. E. Hardacre have leased the hotel and fixtures for a number of years and have made substantial improvements, so that it is now a first-class hostelry, and is doing a very satisfactory business. J. L. Treadaway, the enterprising Columbus real estate dealer, has secured an option on the hotel and may sell the property at once, but the sale would, of course, be subject to the lease of Messrs. Racine and Hardacre. At the time it was built this was the handsomest hotel in Georgia and it is still one of the largest and most imposing buildings in Columbus.

A Very Different Thing.

Mrs. Housekeep—Did I understand you to say you were looking for work?

Polite Hobo—That, madame, was not what I said, nor was it what I meant. I said I was looking for employment.

Quiet in Illinois Fields.

St. Louis, April 1.—The situation among the striking coal miners in Illinois is reported quiet. There was no trouble today at any of the places where the men quit work last night. An inspection this afternoon by the Associated Press of the district between East St. Louis and Belleville, Ill., 14 miles east, showed scores of cars filled with bituminous coal sidetracked by various railroads as a reserve.

DEPEW SHOWING NO IMPROVEMENT

Family of New York Senator Disappointed.

Is in Close Retirement on the Estate of Elliott F. Shepard, but Servants Profess Not To Know of His Presence.

New York, April 1.—The Herald tomorrow will say:

"Promises of Senator Depew that he would return to his place in the senate have not been fulfilled for the reason that hopes of his family for a complete restoration of his health have been disappointing. He is still in retirement on the Elliott F. Shepard estate, back of Scarborough-on-Hudson, where he has been in seclusion for a month since he left Washington.

"So closely is the senator guarded that only a few persons living in the immediate neighborhood are able to say from their own knowledge that he is in the 'Villa' as the house is known. If any employee on the Shepard place is questioned as to the senator, he answers with a well simulated stare of amazement or flatly denies that he has even heard a report of the senator's whereabouts.

"But here and there can be found one or two to admit having seen Mr. Depew. Every pleasant day lately he has been taken for a ride in an automobile and several times he has taken children of the neighbors as companions. Except for caretakers, Senator Depew is practically alone on the two-hundred acre estate."

ATLANTA, GA., April 2, 1906.

We will not believe spring is here until strawberries are within our financial reach.

It seems that, in the case of Treasurer Bliss, at least, Andy Hamilton took the precaution to take a receipt.

If Count Witte were Senator Depew he would probably experience no difficulty in having his resignation accepted.

Maybe the rate bill would get a livelier move on it if Senator Tillman would give it a good jab with that notorious pitchfork.

Secretary Bonaparte says it takes a man in his place a year to learn his job. We fear, then, alas! that Paul Morton never learned his.

General Grosvenor is booming President Roosevelt for a third term. What is it General Grosvenor wants from the appointive power of the administration?

Some of our northern friends are showing a disposition to ostracize the Jamestown exposition for sectional reasons. This does not seem possible at this late post-bellum date.

A Mormon preacher was struck by lightning while in his pulpit. If it is not too late, the anti-Smooters should hasten to add this to their testimony before the senate committee.

It is said that the more advanced new women of Colorado scorn to electioneer and vote for their husbands when the latter are candidates for office. This proves that women show an extraordinary capacity for suffrage.

The great corporations have some great attorneys in the United States senate keeping an eagle eye on their legislative interests and they will see that no violence is done to the constitution of the United States—if anything is still left of that antiquated and musty document!

The news that Uncle Russell Sage has been compelled to resign from the directory of the Gould roads on account of poor health incident to age will sadly disillusion a lot of these crank health faddists who had worked themselves up to the bug-house belief that immortality is possible in the flesh.

Judge Little, who won in the Arkansas gubernatorial primary, will make that state the best chief executive she has had in many a year. For many years Judge Little has been one of the strongest members of the minority in congress. His ability is unquestioned, and it is backed by sterling integrity of character.

Apropos of the immigration question, The Jacksonville Times-Union contributes this: "A carload of Chinamen arrived in Gainesville a few days ago and will go to work as laborers for some naval stores operators near that city. Perhaps it is thought that as we have one race question which we can't shake we might as well have two."

The Columbia State says: "As the Honorable Thomas Watson is not representing any southern district in congress and has no expectation of being able to get the votes to send him there, he cannot see the value of congressmen anyway, and wouldn't care a rap if the number is reduced. But then Thomas by no means represents southern views—and there is much satisfaction in that knowledge."

Taking to task Bourke Cockran for declaring that municipal ownership is a failure, The Buffalo Times says: "The city of Jamestown, with a municipal plant, gets its electric light at the rate of $21.36 per lamp. The city of Buffalo, known far and wide as the 'Electric City,' buys its electricity from a private company and pays $75 per lamp. Private ownership is better than municipal ownership—for the private owners."

Referring to Representative Hardwick, The Columbia State says: "The Georgia congressman who offered an amendment to the appropriation bill cutting off Mrs. Roosevelt from the money necessary to employ a social secretary to look after her correspondence and other matters essential to the successful discharge of her social duties as 'The first lady of the United States,' is unfortunately a southerner and a democrat, but he's in as small a minority in both capacities as he was in the house when he was the only member of it to vote for the amendment."

Twenty-five Years in the South.

Under the foregoing head The New York Sun gives the following remarkable statistical epitome of the great progress of the southern states since the evil days of "reconstruction:"

From $257,000,000 invested in capital for factories to $1,500,000,000; increase $1,243,000,000.

From $457,000,000 yearly value of products of factories to $1,750,000,000; increase $1,293,000,000.

From $21,000,000 capital invested in cotton mills to $225,000,000; increase $204,000,000.

From $313,000,000 annual value of cotton crop to $680,000,000; increase $367,000,000.

From 225,000 bales of cotton used in southern cotton mills to 2,163,000; increase 1,938,000 bales.

From $39,000,000 yearly lumber product to $250,000,000; increase $211,000,000.

From 397,000 tons of pig iron produced to 3,100,000 tons; increase 2,703,000 tons.

From $261,000,000 yearly value of exports abroad to $555,000,000; increase $294,000,000.

From $[illegible],000,000 yearly value of farm products to $1,750,000,000; increase 1,090,000,000.

From 20,600 miles of railroad to 60,000 miles; increase 39,400 miles.

From 179,000 barrels of petroleum produced to 42,495,000; increase 42,316,000 barrels.

From 45 cotton oil mills to 780; increase 735 mills.

From $800,000 capital invested in cotton oil mills to $54,600,000; increase $53,800,000.

From 667,000 spindles in cotton mills to 9,205,000; increase 8,538,000 spindles.

From 211,377 tons of phosphate mined yearly to 1,087,428; increase 876,061 tons.

From 397,776 tons of coke produced yearly to 6,244,185; increase 5,846,409 tons.

To crown it all, from $3,051,000,000 assessed property valuation to $6,500,000,000; increase $3,449,000,000, or an average increase of $138,000,000 a year for the twenty-five years.

And yet this is only a partial list of the south's material assets. The largest items are included, of course, but items representing other millions are omitted.

Notwithstanding these impressive figures, the exploitation of the south's material resources is barely begun. So vast are these resources that it would take a century of aggressive modern development to anything like preempt the opportunities awaiting capital, enterprise and labor on every hand.

New as is the great west, comparatively, it has been over-exploited in comparison with the development of the south. This section is old in nothing save history. The great bulk of its development is a matter of the past decade or two. The surface has barely been scratched as yet.

Come south, young man, and grow up with the country! Come south, capitalist, and grow richer with the country! Come south, laborer, and receive the certain rewards of your labor—rewards not to be equalled in any other portion of God's footstool!

The Famine in Japan.

The American Red Cross Society is making a strong effort to raise in this country a substantial fund to be used in the relief of the starving Japanese. The brave little people of Nippon are not parading their dire distress in the eyes of the world, but are rather trying to hide it and cope with the famine without outside help. The Japanese government is doing everything in its power to meet the emergency, but it is well known that the relief it is able to supply is only partial and temporary.

The New York branch of the Red Cross has recently issued a statement of famine conditions in the northern provinces of Japan, from which it appears that the emergency is indeed great and merits the charitable attention of the civilized world. It is conservatively estimated that fully a million people are in practically a starving condition as the result of the failure of the rice crop last summer. To add to the sufferings from dearth of food, the past winter has been unusually severe in northern Japan.

Frank A. Vivanti, chairman of the Japanese famine committee of the Red Cross, who dropped dead from heart disease in a New York elevated railroad station the other day, lived among these people in the hills of northern Japan for twenty years and took the most lively interest in their present unhappy condition. A few minutes before his sudden death he had just finished writing a strong public appeal for their relief by the American people, from which we quote in part, as follows:

Now, these persons who are starving I know intimately from personal contact. They are, if I may so characterize them, the Scots of Japan—a sturdy, honest, industrious, law-abiding people, not mercenary, but ambitious. They would rather starve than beg, and I know that in their present emergency they will keep silent and endure whatever comes rather than seek charity. I was not surprised to find that in the war they furnished some of the greatest soldiers.

I know them so well that I know that this calamity is due to no fault of theirs, unless it be their loyalty to their country. Three years ago they suffered from a famine, and meantime they have sent thousands of men to battle. I have seen them in times of prosperity and have admired their frugality. Nothing is wasted. They are never rich, but barring accident, they are always self-supporting. This famine, however, they cannot battle with, because they have nothing in reserve and because there is no hope of harvest until October.

For these people Japan is doing everything in its power, as I know. Japan is supporting thousands of widows is operating homes for thousands of orphan children, and in addition she must meet the charges on her great war debt. Japan, therefore, has her hands full, and in the present emergency, although no cry for help has come from official Japan, those who know the conditions of the country realize that there is great need for aid of a form which will not break the spirit of these sturdy, hard working men and women of the northern provinces.

Even the babies, because their mothers' milk has failed through hunger, are starving, and there is involved not only the present generation of sturdy working peasants, but also those who are to come after and to whom the Japanese government is making every preparation to furnish modern education as an aid to the natural ability and character of these people.

It is understood that a commissioner from Japan is now in this country soliciting help and arranging to send food products to his starving countrymen. The response of the American people thus far has not been characteristic of their liberality in such emergencies. No doubt this is largely owing to the fact that they have not been made aware of the true conditions in Japan. They made handsome contributions to the famine sufferers in India, and their sincere admiration for the Japanese, as evinced in the recent struggle of that heroic people against giant Russia, will no doubt make them doubly willing to come to their aid in a material way in their hour of need. The farmers of the west have contributed several trainloads of corn and wheat, and considerable quantities of provisions have already left Pacific coast ports for Japan, but this, it is said, will be only a drop in the bucket. The starving Japs will have to be tided over the spring season, until they can grow some vegetables and early crops capable of sustaining life. Their main dependence, of course, is the rice crop, which does not ripen until fall. It is estimated that it will require some $16,000,000 to save these million people from starvation until they are in a position to resume their self-support. Of course, the Japanese government and people will furnish the bulk of this large sum, but immediate outside help is said to be badly needed to avert actual starvation.

The American people, when they learn the facts, will doubtless do their full share in relieving Japanese distress.

Reforming Criminals.

A change is slowly but surely being experienced in penology, due to the altered modern view of crime and criminals. The science of criminology has had something to do with this increased and more intelligent knowledge of the subject, of course, but the quickened sense of humanity actuated by Christian ideals has had infinitely more to do with it.

While in some quarters there may be too much of a tendency to regard criminality as a morbid result of neurotic diseases and psychic suggestion, coupled with pre-natal influences, heredity, and other occult forces beyond scientific ken, it is but rational and humane to make allowances for possible influences of the kind and employ the same care in trying to reclaim a criminal as is employed in trying to restore the sick to health. Brute punishment has never shown very satisfactory results in penology, and it brutalizes the state and its official instruments.

The Salvation Army may know little of scientific criminology, but it knows much about human nature and its amenability to kind treatment. The British government, recognizing the value of this great religious organization's methods in dealing with the vicious and criminal, has turned over to it convicts released by the home office. General Booth, of the Salvation Army, says:

There is no doubt that many criminals are mentally diseased almost semi-imbecile.

These people are weak in their will and easily led astray by the temptations of the hour.

A more difficult class to reclaim is the habitual criminal. From the age of 4 or 5 he has been taught to steal, until small larcenies are second nature to him.

The third class consists of the people who conclude that a life of crime is easier, more exciting, and more profitable than hard, honest work.

Our plan is to make these people see, not only the wickedness, but also the folly of their lives, and to produce a change of nature which shall make them hate their present evil ways.

They must be removed compulsorily to conditions under which they cannot do evil, and these conditions must not be the atmosphere of the prison.

There is common sense and true Christianity in this view.

TALKS ABOUT ATLANTA

Columbus Enquirer-Sun: Union forces captured Atlanta again yesterday.

Thomasville Times-Enterprise: Atlanta is to have a bar association, legal, not Piedmont.

Rome Tribune: Atlanta wants to raise $600,000 at home for that big exposition, before asking for another cent on the outside. And Atlanta will raise it, too.

Spartanburg (S. C.) Herald: We do not wish Governor Curry, of the Island of Samar, any harm, and hope that he was not slain by the fanatics in the Philippine insurrection a few days ago. If he is still living, he might be located in Atlanta.

Milledgeville News: A wireless telegraph station is to be established on top of the Candler building in Atlanta. That will make it easy for the patrons in the building of Hoke Smith's Piedmont bar, located across the street, especially if some quick delivery service can be inaugurated in connection.

Charleston News and Courier: We wish the Atlantans would make Charleston their home port, and that they would come here and take possession of the town and all its approaches when the new warship Georgia is ready to receive the punch bowl or other utensil which the patriotic Georgians will make to the fighting namesake of their great state. This is the only port on the south Atlantic which can be entered by the ship, and everything we have is at the service of our neighbors for this occasion.

MILLIONS SPENT IN MEXICO.

Railroad Improvements Will Furnish Employment to Thousands.

Mexico City, April 1.—A general survey of the cost of railway extensions now under construction, chaging the gauge on narrow gauge roads, terminals at the port of Vera Cruz, etc., show approximate expenditures of more than sixty million dollars. There will be abundant employment for thousands of men for several years.

The railways entering this city are to have a union station which, with the new terminals, will probably cost ten million dollars. This improvement has been long contemplated.

Shortly after the opening of the Tehuantepec railway for through traffic from ocean to ocean the line will be made double track, making it the only double track road in the republic. The new harbors at Coatzacolcos, on the gulf of Mexico, and Salina Cruz, on the Pacific, will shorten the time for freight shipments to New York and San Francisco two to three days and shorten the time between Europe and the west coast considerable.

It is believed the double track can be made in eight months from the time of beginning.

FREUND LOOKS TO SOUTH FOR GREAT LEADER

JOHN C. FREUND, promoter, traveler and a careful student of economics and industrial conditions in every portion of the world, has just made a visit to Atlanta. It was in 1885 that this Oxford man was last in Atlanta and the south, and some of the observations which he has made during this trip—the contrasts which he has noted in the evolution of the past twenty years, and the absolute faith which he has in the south, its future and its certainty of producing such a leader as will point the people of the entire country to higher and better things—are both important and profitably interesting at this time.

Mr. Freund, as publisher and editor of The Music Trades and The Musical American, stands at the very head of these allied business interests, and his words on all matters pertaining to this line of business enterprise is taken as that of an authority. That he accomplishes things as well as talks of conditions, is proved by the announcement which he made during his visit of new enterprises which mean much for the Greater Atlanta of the immediate future, and, according to those in a position to know, Editor Freund was himself personally responsible for working up interest, such as will result in the addition of two new factories in Atlanta. Editor Freund said:

"I have now, since I have seen the parties and gone over the matter with them, the positive assurance that two of the largest musical houses now operating in the south will soon transfer their headquarters to Atlanta. Besides this, within two years, or possibly one year, a large reed organ factory, employing several hundred men, will be established in Atlanta. This enterprise has large capital behind it, and as soon as the reed organ factory is well established, a piano factory will be established as well."

This will mean that Atlanta will be the recognized headquarters of the allied musical trades and the greatest manufacturing center of musical instruments in the entire south. While Editor Freund refuses to accept the credit of bringing these new industries to this city, it is generally recognized that his persistent advocacy of the south as affording the finest opportunities for just such enterprises, as well as the many articles he has published and written on the growth and progress of Dixie, have had a great influence in the direction of these new enterprises. Editor Freund modestly disposed of the matter in this way:

"Atlanta's own enterprise is responsible for the location of the first organ and piano factories in the south by southern men, with southern capital. For I want to say authoritatively that this is not a Chicago or eastern scheme."

"South's Progress Phenomenal."

"To me," continued Editor Freund, "the progress and advancement of Atlanta is nothing less than miraculous and phenomenal. I know that everyone says pretty much this same sort of thing until it has gotten to be sort of a glittering generality. But I do not speak of it in this way. I speak of it as one who has studied the subject from the practical viewpoint of a business man, with a proper regard for details and cold figures which do not awaken enthusiasm unless they are tremendous. But these cold statistics, as they pertain to Atlanta and the entire south, are tremendous. They represent the most marvelous growth in the world's history. Neither the middle west nor the west can compare with the advancement made in the south, and the figures are ready to prove this statement.

"Note these statistics, which are absolutely correct: The capital invested in southern mills in 1885 amounted to $25,000,000. Today it amounts to $225,000,000. Then there were 250 mills in the south. Today there are 1,500 of these manufacturing plants, and more coming in every day. Twenty years ago the manufactured products of the south amounted to $450,000,000, and everyone marveled at the great awakening of the south. Today they exceed $1,800,000,000; in fact, exceeded that amount last year. Just two or three more sets of figures and I will stop: Twenty years ago the farm products of the south were $600,000,000. Last year they exceeded $2,000,000,000. Then there were 200 national banks only, while now the number exceeds 1,200, national banks alone, please understand.

"Where can you show such progress? It simply cannot be shown. In 1885 the musical industries were few, but now southern houses have grown to a marvelous extent and have an assured credit and enviable reputation such as is recognized not alone in this country, but throughout the entire civilized world.

"And in this connection I must speak of that capable and efficient pioneer of the south in this particular industry, Benjamin Crew, of Atlanta. I feel sure that loved and admired as he is in his home city, Atlanta little realizes what this gentleman has done for this city, Georgia and the entire south in establishing this industry on a level quite the equal of that to be found anywhere. A kindly and courtly gentleman, his business enterprise has been of that substantial order which has established the reputation of this industry on the kind of a foundation that grows larger and larger and always on a foundation such as is the guarantee of education and inspiration of competitors as well as friends.

"Mr. Crew is well known throughout the south and loved and admired as a man who has done much for the south wherever he is known. His associate enjoyed exactly the same kind of reputation, although, unfortunately, I did not learn to know him as I knew Mr. Crew. But I can say this. The mantle of Mr. Phillips has fallen on just the right kind of shoulders, and his son is carrying out the same principles for which the firm was famous from the very start.

Looks to the South for Leader.

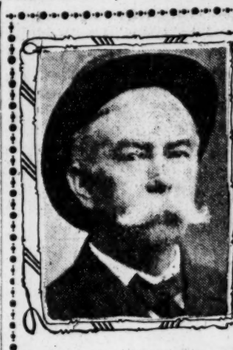

"But it is to the south that I look to see raised up such a leader as will bring the people to better things through evolution, and in this way save the revolution that is promised for the future.

"In the first place the inquity of the climate and the condition of the soil make for the raising of great leaders. The history of the world proves this. The trouble is that the gravest matters of the republic have been left to the politicians. Carlyle foresaw these troubles of a democracy in the development of an oligarchy and the concentration of capital. I do not expect the north, the east or the west to develop this leader because these sections are money mad and materialism stifles the every better and nobler ambition.

"In the south there is a purity of politics such as is not known in any other section and men pursue other than purely material things. That is why I look to the south for the raising of a man in whom the entire people will have perfect and absolute confidence and will point the way to better things.

"The world is tired of war and emperors and standing armies. This is the period of peace. What we want is a leader of peace. I expect him to come from the south, but he must be beyond all selfishness of sectionalism. He must be American. Nothing can better prove my belief that the thinking element are waiting for and want a brave and honorable man than the effect of a single speech of your own great Henry Grady, of Atlanta. Within twenty-four hours he caught and held the listening ear of the entire country and the world. Individualism is what is wanted in a leader. It has always been so and the world has not changed in this respect. The highest citizenship finds its greatest expression in leaders with the confidence of the people and that is what we most need just at this time.

"Don't think that I am complaining about conditions, for I believe that this world is getting better all of the time, notwithstanding the carping critics and pessimists to the contrary. But I believe that we are going to grow still better and that the time is at hand when we will be led by some great soldier of peace and not of war and that all signs and conditions point to the south as the Bethlehem from which we may expect this new Messiah with the absolute confidence of the people for setting right such imprositions as we are face to face with at its time."

BRUFF'S COLUMN

THE sight of G. V. Gress, for many years a prominent and influential Atlantan, in his old haunts, the Kimball corridor and on Peachtree street a night or two ago brought to mind with a rush the generous and liberal nucleus of the zoo now quartered at Grant Park, a feature of Atlanta's outing grounds which has done more for the health, the happiness and the instructions of Atlanta children than all else combined, except the public school system.

It was back in the middle '80's Mr. Gress endeared himself to the children not only of Atlanta but of every town in the state—nearly every town in Georgia having at some time been represented by a concourse of children at Grant Park, a gathering that might never have come had there been no zoo.

In '85 about one of four circuses which have gone stranded in Georgia went broke in Atlanta and was being advertised by the sheriff of Fulton county for sale. A card writer in The Constitution suggested that Atlanta ought to buy the animals and install a zoo at Grant Park, then comparatively new. The card attracted general attention and met with a decidedly favorable reception. But as the Atlanta general council did not have the right to invest Atlanta's money in lions, tigers, hyenas and red wagons the project was about to fall when G. V. Gress, then largely interested in Atlanta came to the front with a offer to the city.

The proposed zoo had proved popular with the children and the instant Mr. Gress' plans were announced the little ones of Atlanta began making the lives of members of the council who did not favor the zoo miserable. Mr. Gress offered to buy the animals as a nucleus provided the general council would enter into a contract to support the animals bought and to replace any member of the family that might die. Some tax payers opposed the acceptance of the gift and worked to defeat it. But the boys and girls, some mere tots, proved too strong for their white haired old friends and a perpetual contract was made between Mr. Gress and the city of Atlanta.

"I signed the check for what I bought with more pleasure than I ever wrote my name to any paper," said Mr. Gress subsequently during a reference to that event.

But a zoo was not a zoo without an elephant. The same children who had whipped the fight against the Gress gift decided to have an elephant. Uncle Remus became their champion and under his leadership, assisted by Chief Joyner of the fire department and Mrs. Joyner, Atlanta's first elephant was purchased in the east, the money having been raised by the children. She was christened Clio in honor of Mrs. Joyner and a committee of prominent Atlantans went east to accompany Clio home.

The arrival of the elephant was one of the gala events in the history of Atlanta. It made a half holiday and the mayor, the general council, the fire department and every mother in the city with about every child in Fulton county lined the sidewalks of the streets over which Clio, most gorgeously decorated, marched to Grant Park.

Subsequently Joe Carter, the large lion at the park was added to the zoo in the same manner.

Steve Postell, the well-known newspaper man, Atlanta correspondent for The Macon Telegraph, is about the only reporter in the south—I think I might safely say in the entire country—who was ever the sole owner of one of the largest of elephants. It is in the Bailey aggregation now. It happened this way.

A circus hit a hard run of luck and a hard-hearted sheriff in Walton county just about the same time. The hard luck was played to a standstill by the hard-hearted sheriff and the circus was sold under the hammer. Steve Postell was then working on The Constitution and was sent by the city editor to report the sale of the circus—a circus sale was about the only novelty in reportorial work to Steve and it was for the purpose of letting him round out his career more than any thing else that he was given the assignment. It was awful cold in Monroe that day and circus men from all over the country were there hoping to pull in a bargain or two.

A young elephant was put up and Sells' agent started the work, Steve Postell coming in after the price was four figures deep. Then every bidder dropped out except Sells' representative and Steve Postell. The Atlantan, in desperation, added a stiff jump and walked away as much as to say that he was all in. Finally an old friend of Steve Postell's hunted him up. The Sells' agent was along and after a few remarks about the weather had been made the Georgian said:

"Steve, this gentleman wants to know what profit you'll take and let him carry the elephant away."

"Elephant? What elephant? What are you talking about? Elephant?" replied Steve.

"The elephant you bought ten minutes ago. That big fellow. Say, Steve, what's the matter with you?" asked his Georgia friend. "Don't you know that you just paid $6,000 for an elephant?"

"Elephant? Six thousand dollars? Me buy an elephant? Six thousand dollars? G'lang! what yer take me for? Elephant. Six thousand dollars? Why I haven't got that many cents. And what use have I for an elephant? I tried to buy that empty lion cage over there, thinking I might be able to use it for a movable coal house this winter."

The elephant was sold again an hour later and was bought by Sells' agent. Steve Postell has a life-time ticket to Sells' shows and every time he enters that big tent the elephant Steve owned for less than a quarter of an hour recognizes him and gets ready for the hand bag of goobers Steve always brings her even if he has to go without his red lemonade.

Two small mules and a laundry wagon may be seen every day upon the streets of Atlanta. These mules were a few years ago the property of a circus and both were among the educated adjuncts. One did the January act while the other never entered a ring without ribbons which had been awarded to it as the most graceful four-legged dancer ever shown under canvas.

A few years ago a circus had been passing the winter months in Macon. Upon the last visit of that circus to Macon to go into winter quarters the board of aldermen turned down the petition. It was up to the circus to hunt another location and as moving just then was quite expensive the proprietor in a jocular manner offered to sell out cheap to Macon. Hon. Ben Jones was a member of the board of aldermen at that time and dared the circus man to make good his offer to sell.

The circus man was game.

So was Ben Jones.

The next morning Ben Jones owned the circus and his friends were wondering what he would do with it. They all all know now. Ben Jones sold out piece at a time, the mules coming to Atlanta, and when he made his final reckoning Mr. Jones found himself well fixed on the healthy side of his only circus ledger.

The annual session of the board of control of the Hebrew Orphans' home held here two weeks ago recalls the hard fight made nearly twenty years ago by a half dozen of the leading cities of the south for the location of the home.

Previous to the formation of the present district, composed of the two Carolinas, the two Virginias, Georgia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, the children then being cared for were located in Baltimore temporarily. A meeting of the board of control was called by Hon. Simon Wolfe, of Washington, D. C., and was held in that city. During the session the absolute necessity for the home at once was made apparent and after it had been determined to delay the matter no longer, a half dozen cities submitted claims for the location. Mr. Wolfe was partial to Washington as the permanent home. Baltimore had strong advocates on the floor, as did Richmond, Raleigh, Norfolk, Charlotte, Charleston, Savannah and Macon. The contest was assuming a somewhat awkward form when a resolution was adopted declaring that the home should be located in the city which would raise $25,000 first. Upon adjournment of the meeting, delegates from each of the cities seeking the location rushed home to get busy without delay. It was an interesting and exciting contest and the daily progress was watched closely every day in every section of the country. The Hebrews in Atlanta worked with their accustomed energy and zeal and were given every possible assistance by their friends of every faith in this section.

And before two weeks had gone by the Atlantans informed Mr. Wolfe that the requisite sum of money was in bank ready to welcome the coming of the home to Atlanta. One year later the building was practically ready for occupancy.

The opening day was an event in the history of all Atlanta. Hon. Joseph Hirsch, always prominent in the work for the orphans, reached Atlanta that morning with twelve or fifteen children the new district was then caring for. Today there are nearly one hundred children in the home, and every year quite a number is admitted while as many more nearly are sent out each year into the world prepared to take up the battle of life.

MEXICAN TRADE HAS TREBLED

Increased from Thirty-one Millions to Ninety-two Millions in 10 Years.

Washington, April 1.—A bulletin issued by the department of commerce and labor shows that the trade of the United States with Mexico in the fiscal year 1905 aggregated in value $92,000,000, as compared with $31,000,000 in 1895 and $18,000,000 in 1885.

Of Mexico's imports, 53 per cent is drawn from the United States, and of her total exports 71 per cent comes here. No other country except Canada draws as large a percentage of its imports from the United States and no other country except Cuba sends as large a percentage of its exports to this country.

Estimates made by American consular representatives and others and by persons in the United States familiar with the subject, the bulletin says, indicate that fully a billion dollars of capital from this country is now invested in Mexico. Canada and Cuba, of which about one-half is in Mexico.

Imports from Mexico of Sisal grass in 1905 amounted to nearly $15,000,000, also of copper in various shapes to over $10,000,000. The copper is brought here for smelting and refining processes and the extraction of the precious metals which it contains.

Iron and steel manufactures exported to Mexico aggregated over $12,000,000 out of a total of $45,000,000 of exports.

DRINK PURE WATER.

It is admitted by well-informed people that pure water is absolutely essential to health and happiness, and it is unfortunately true that the water in most cities and towns is not entirely pure and wholesome. If, in addition to the element of purity, you add the life-giving properties contained in Bowden Lithia Springs Water, how would it be possible to estimate in dollars its value to mankind. In comparison with the benefit to be derived from the free use of this water, the cost is a mere trifle.

Lithia is singular in its power and its value is beyond computation in the treatment of all forms of diseases of the uric acid diathesis. Bowden Lithia Water contains by double the largest quantity of this mineral of that of any other natural water, and is, therefore, the most effective in combating that almost endless chain of maladies that so dangerously attack the kidneys and secretory organs, while the associate minerals and salts it contains are strikingly similar to the human blood, and are efficacious in a wider range of organic derangements than any other known water or remedy.

Pages of testimonials from the most prominent physicians in the country can be furnished showing the efficacy of this wonderful water. Write for booklet of testimonials. We desire simply to call your attention to the merits and popularity of Bowden Lithia Water and the assurance from the management that all orders will receive prompt and courteous attention. Your patronage is solicited for the water, furnished in 12-gallon carboys, 5-gallon demijohns and in cases containing six or twelve half-gallon bottles. Bell telephone 1086.

THEATERS.

Lulu Glaser.

Miss Lulu Glaser, who is starring this season in Charles Dillingham's production of "Miss Dolly Dollars," makes a novel stage entrance. She appears on the scene in a handsome up-to-date automobile, which has broken down, and is drawn by a dilapidated old horse, borrowed from a farmer for the occasion. She sprinkles her conversation throughout the performance with the vernacular of the garage. The automobile jokes took exceedingly well in New York, where it is the proper caper to pretend to thoroughly understand everything about automobiles and horses, and not a few laughed uproariously at jokes they failed utterly to understand.

Miss Glaser and the identical company which supported her in New York, and the same scenic and mechanical effects, will be seen at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday night and at a matinee Thursday afternoon.

The sale of seats will open this morning, and judging from the many inquiries that have been pouring in all last week, there will be a long line of purchasers when the box office opens.

"The Maid and the Mummy."

Wherever "The Maid and the Mummy" has been presented, the chorus has been praised as the prettiest and sprightliest and hardest working of any on the American stage. This fact is not to be wondered at when it is understood that the author, Richard Carle, personally selected the chorus, and that he would give place to no girls who couldn't sing well and dance with grace. From the start, Mr. Carle impressed upon the chorus the necessity of hard and continuous work. "The Maid and the Mummy" is the only traveling company that carries a special dancing master, whose only duty it is to coach the chorus and drill the young women day after day and night after night.

There are thirty pretty girls in the chorus, and they always share honors with the twenty comedians.

"The Maid and the Mummy" will be the attraction at the Grand Friday and Saturday.

Barney Gilmore.

Supreme self-sacrifice is the motive of "A Rocky Road to Dublin," which Barney Gilmore will present for the consideration of patrons of the Bijou this week. The story is that of a big-hearted, clear-minded, upstanding young Irishman, who, to save the reputation of the brother of the woman he loves, takes the guilt of the other's shame on himself, and only wins his desire after three acts of an absorbing and natural play. Robert Daley, the young bank clerk, the role for which Mr. Gilmore is cast, offers finer possibilities for the player's skill than any other character he has ever found. He possesses the unctuous humor, the ready wit and the indomitable courage—qualities in the simulating of which Mr. Gilmore is most happy.

The scenic environment of the play, which was written by Daniel L. Hart, of "The Parish Priest" fame, has been most carefully looked after by Messrs. Havlin & Nicolai, who are managing Mr. Gilmore's tour, and the patrons of the Bijou may be prepared for an unusually fine evening's entertainment with the new play, the players and Mr. Gilmore's harp and vocal solos and his new dances.

Star Theater.

"A Georgia Cracker," a musical comedy burlesque in connection with an unusual array of vaudeville talent is in store for the patrons of the Star Theater for this week. Matinee today. ***

Peachtree Auditorium.

Tonight Atlantans will have a chance to revel in the weird and mysterious. Those having troubles may be relieved by asking a solution of the same from Mrs. Kittie Baldwin, "The White Mahatma." Mrs. Baldwin with her company of vaudeville stars open a week's engagement Monday, supported by that pleasing necromancer and hypnotist, Keene, the magician. Mrs. Baldwin will be remembered as one of the star attractions during the exposition season, and her many friends are still puzzling over her marvelous work which seems to go beyond human power and delve into the supernatural.

SOME STRAY SYMPTOMS

THE physician lay in his bed and dreamt of—

When the 'phone rang.

It was midnight, and the doc shot out of bed and was in the hallway before he got half awake.

"Yes, Mrs. Blank, this is I. What! Six in danger! I'll come at once. Good-b"—

And he hung up the 'phone with a slam, made a frantic dash to get on the rest of his clothes, sped out to the cowshed which had been transformed in to a garage, gave the thingumbob which starts the auto a tremendous wrench, and hopped into the devil wagon.

Honk! Honk Chu! Chu!

And he was going at the rate of 30 miles an hour. Although it was midnight, there were cops awake on Whitehall street, and the terrific clatter of the fearful rush of the speeding auto alarmed 'em all. They got out into the middle of the street to stop the miscreant, who was breaking the speed regulations with the eclat of a millionaire. The cop at Mitchell street wildly waved his billie, but the auto swept by him like an ill-smelling Kansas cyclone. The cop at Alabama street shouted for the maniac to stop, and, as the machine shot past, he futilely yelled, "I've got your number, anyway."

Over the viaduct the doc swirled, and the street sweepers just beginning their work gaped in astonishment at the fearful phantom. And just four minutes after he got out of his backyard, the doc leaped out of his machine and, puffing and blowing, rushed into the house, 2 miles away.

The door was thrust open for him, and the excited mater familias led him to the fateful room. They entered and as one of the wee patients chirped out, "Hi, doc!" the physician dropped his medicine case.

"What are the symptoms?" the doc weakly asked the mater familias.

"Oh, our coachman has developed smallpox, and I want to have the dear little things vaccinated. Oh, I've been so worried! Tell me, there isn't any danger, is there?"

The doc swore softly under his breath, and said very unprofessionally, "Well, I reckon not."

And he jabbed the six wee arms just a little bit harder than was necessary.

His auto didn't go quite so fast on the way back, for the doc was doing an anathematic monologue.

SHAKESPEARE'S dictum to the effect that he who has not music in himself is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils, had a peculiar sort of reversal the other night, and one who had quite a deal of love for melody was made victim of a most remarkable scheme, a scheme classic in nature, having prototypes of the legend of Pan and the animals, Orpheus and the boss of hades, the Pied Piper and the rodents.

Aside from similarity to these historic incidents, there is an essence of modern life in the story.

Ralph Bingham was the Pied Piper of our story, which runs something like this:

Some time ago, a hitherto confirmed bachelor announced his engagement in marriage to a charming young lady. Our bachelor had lived in free estate for many years and had become addicted to the habit. He liked his highball, he liked his peaceful pipe in his apartments, he liked his life of ease sans worry incident to double harness. But he had met a woman, and, in an unguarded moment he had committed himself. Being a most eligible person, he had been accepted. Then came regrets. Not that our groom-to-be did not love the young lady. On the contrary, he loved her very dearly, and when in her presence became one transported. But the call of the wild, or whatever it may be, kept gnawing at his soul, and he sort o' feared he had made a mistake in assuming a wife.

The night before the marriage was to take place, he gave a bachelor supper to a few cronies, pals of his days of freedom. There were things to drink at this supper, and exuberance of auld lang syne caused the host to take just a few too many. Then they all clasped hands and trod around the table, singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." That finished the groom. He wept.

"Soon all the guests departed, save Ralph Bingham.

"Tell you, Ralph," woozily declared the groom. "Can't do it. S'elp me; won't marry that girl. Can't do it. Going to take first train out of town and leave the country."

He was in awful earnest, and Ralph Bingham saw something must be done. So he affected to agree with the groom, but told him that it would be several hours before a train would leave for anywhere, it then being 3 a. m. So the groom sat down and wept softly. And Ralph opened his violin case and drew forth his loved instrument. Now, if your have heard Ralph Bingham play, you know what followed. It may be that, judged by classic standards, this man is not a great musician, but he can make marvelous melody. He can make a fiddle weep and rejoice, scream with anguish and scream with ecstatic happiness. He can break your heart or raise you to heaven.

So he played. And the woozy, boozy, honest, sincere, troubled man, hesitating between marriage and disgrace, sat and listened.

Ralph Bingham played five solid hours for his friend, never ceasing. And when he had finished, the groom was cold sober. He realized how foolish he had been and he made his way to a Turkish bath to get rid of the katzenjammer. The marriage took place that evening.

But Ralph Bingham wasn't there. His right arm was in a sling, swollen, aching, almost helpless.

Ole Bull himself couldn't have played a violin five hours without stopping.

AFTER nestling in the lap of Winter for some weeks, Spring seems to have bounded out into the open and prepared to tackle its hitherto delayed work. Fresh paint and engagement announcements are abroad in the land, and the wall-paper folk are hanging out their most alluring patterns.

However, there is one young man who is not likely to figure very much in any of the nuptials along this season of the year; that is, not unless it is his own.

for as best man he has proved a dismal failure and has temporarily withdrawn from spots where the swell of the wedding bell will break in on his tympanums.

Maybe you've heard the story? There was a really swell wedding on the south side recently and this young man, who has been referred to wordily in the foregoing, was nominated as best man. It was his premier essay, but he didn't call in any extra help. Having often observed weddings he gathered the idea that it was the duty of the best man to get as near the spot light as possible and be where he would show up well in a flashlight picture of the bridal party.

Hence, this particular best man's principal pains were concerning his personal appearance on the wedding night. Hence, when the minister called for the license the wedding night a few moments before the ceremony, the best man gasped, and sought out the groom; the groom paled and called in his father. After a hurried consultation, the minister decided to perform the ceremony, and when the license was secured to repeat it privately immediately after the public function.

The wedding over, the best man fell into a carriage and was whirled to the ordinary's home. The ordinary sleepily answered the call and after much cajoling and pleading and explanation, consented to go to the office and issue the necessary paper. In the meantime, while the ordinary was making his toilet, the bride was nervous and the members of the family who had been informed of the faux pas of the best man, were scarcely able to control themselves.

Suddenly it dawned on them that it would soon be train time. In fact, the time was already limited. A brother of the groom was flung into a carriage and the horses galloped to the ordinary's office. He went to inform the best man that the married un-wed couple, were going to the train with the minister and that the license was to be taken there.

The license was secured, rushed to the Terminal station and there the ceremony was completed in due and legal form. The conductor yelled all aboard! "Gimme the ticket for the drawing room," said the groom. The best man collapsed. He had forgotten it.

That night the young couple sat up in the day coach.

The $50 bill for the minister's fee had been used by the best man to pay for the license, and he had received small change for the difference.

The minister called in a porter to lug home the $48.75 in quarters and dimes.

It was long after 10 o'clock.

The best man hied himself to the club.

IT would be unfair to mention the name of the young couple. Anyway, you'll doubtless recognize them by the suggestion of a description that is necessarily incorporated in the report of their conversation during the progress of this immediate incident.

Perhaps, by way of laying a foundation, it might be well to state that the young wife not infrequently may be hard to refer to "Thus Spake Zarathustra," and if you linger near the husband you may come away with your mentality bestrewed with wisps from "Leaves of Grass." And ever and anon they are likely to ring in a book by Browning, or refer with wistful look to Fiona Macleod and bewail to the sad fate that facts put upon them when it was announced that William Sharp, author of "Vistas," was in fact cunningly hidden behind the skirts of a feminine nom de guerre. Which foregoing suggestions as to the trend of the young couple's thoughts, tendencies and moods may throw much light on this story.

This harmoniously wedded couple went to see a friend a few days ago, and rode out on a suburban train. Ever alert for subjects of the soulful or human interest, the wife espied across the aisle a man of commanding figure, massive brow—e'en ponderous it was—and a countenance filled with a seriousness of expression that suggested introspection, innate cognitation and other such high-sounding phrases.

"Such a noble countenance," whispered the wife, nudging her husband. "I wonder what his occupation is?"

"A lawyer, perhaps," re-whispered the husband.

"No, no," answered the wife; "there is too much of benignity and benevolence in that face. He must be a banker."

"I am sure he is not," replied the husband, doubtless thinking of the difficulty he had just had in renewing a note for ninety days. "No, a man with such a dignified yet heavenly expression would not be content to dissipate his mental strength in such a vulgar trade as securing money and saving it. His aim in life is directed by a higher and less indigenous inspiration. His wagon is hitched to a star!"

The wife beamed on her mate and ventured: "Do you think he is an editor?" This is the reply she received:

"An editor! An editor! With such a face, every line indicating kindliness, universal sympathy. A man with a wonderful head and countenance like that saying hard, untruthful things about everybody; ridiculing women's dresses and abusing mothers in law! An editor! Cutting and slashing his enemies, mercilessly slaughtering his friends!"

"Then," said the wife, "he is a philanthropist, or a litterateur. His face plainly indicates that he is all that is noble, good, pure, true, uplifting and ennobling."

Together they gazed in mute admiration at the thoughtful dome.

At the next station an inquisitive old man took a seat beside the noble browed one and instanter asked his occupation. The young couple held their breath, horrified at the rank iconoclasm of the ancient person. The thoughtful topped one replied:

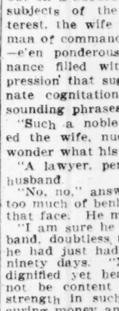

"I got a barroom and a butcher shop. My boy tends bar an' do my own killin'."

ALABAMA WANTS GEORGIA'S RATES

Mayor Henderson, of Troy, Discusses Freight Question.

He Declares that Although Georgia's Freight Rates Are Being Attacked by Politicians at Home, Alabama Would Be Glad To Have the Same.

Troy, Ala., April 1.—(Special.)—Although Hoke Smith is almost daily attacking Georgia's freight rates, Mr. Comer, leading candidate for governor, and president of the railroad commission of Alabama, is making his race on the Georgia rates, using in advocacy of same a comparison of the rates of the two states, which shows those of Georgia to be from 25 to 50 per cent less. Merchants, manufacturers and all classes of business men in a half hundred or more towns of Alabama unhesitatingly state that the Georgia rates would be quite satisfactory to them, reducing their freight bills by one-half on many commodities.

What Mayor Henderson Says.

One of the most prominent as well as best informed advocates of the Georgia rates for Alabama is Hon. Charles Henderson, mayor of Troy, who is considered the father of the agitation for lower railroad rates in this state, being the chairman of a committee sent by Troy ten or fifteen years ago to Washington to have tested by the courts the legality of low and discriminatory rate for competitive railroad centers. Mr. Henderson was foremost among the most enthusiastic supporters of Hon. B. B. Comer in his race for the presidency of the Alabama railway commission two years ago, when he was elected by a majority of 30,000; and at present is a candidate himself for the office of railroad commissioner on the Comer ticket.

In speaking of the agitation in Alabama for lower rates, to which he has contributed so conspicuous a part, Mayor Henderson said:

"Our programme in Alabama is to affect such a reduction in local freight rates as will enable the Alabama farmer to reach the consuming centers off the state with all farm products, and permit the manufacturing and distributing towns to return to the country dry goods, hardware, furniture, farming implements, fertilizers and all manufactured articles as cheap or cheaper than in Georgia.

"My friend, Hon. B. B. Comer, won the race for railroad commission on such an issue two years ago, but has been powerless to put into effect the rates demanded, for want of proper legislation. Now that he is to be the next governor and the whole state will back him up with a senate and house of representatives of his own thinking our fight, you might say, is already won.

Rates Are Compared.

To see the justice of our claims, look at the rates in Alabama and Georgia on a hundred pounds for a distance of 41 miles, this comparison having been furnished by the Southern railroad at the request of the railroad commission of South Carolina.

"The figures speak for themselves:

	Georgia.	Alabama.
Meats	13½	19
Grain	7½	12
Bagging	13½	19
Boxes	34	44
Broom corn	7½	29
Butter	20	44
Canned goods	25	32
Coffee	15	29
Cotton	17	26
Flour (per barrel)	16½	26
Fruits	15	20
Machinery	15	20
Mattresses	27½	36
Sirup	9	19
Domestics	15	29
Harness and saddlery	30	38
Agricultural implements	15	20
Hay	7½	12
Cotton ties	9	19

From the above it really looks to the people of this state that Hoke had better look up some other issue and drop the railroad rates of Alabama.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT UNIVERSITY

Fine Course of Study Being Prepared for Attendants.

Athens, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—The arrangements for the fourth annual session of the University Summer school are now being very rapidly perfected by Superintendent Thomas J. Woofter and the outlook is for the best session in the history of that institution.

Superintendent Woofter and the directors of the school have gathered together one of the ablest faculties ever placed in charge of a summer school in the south. In addition to a number of the local educators in the institute, a number of educators from abroad have been secured. Among these are Mrs. Gertrude A. Alexander, editor of The Southern Education Journal; M. L. Brittain, of Atlanta; Miss Stella S. Center, of Monroe Female college; R. B. Daniel, of Valdosta; C. H. Davis, of Dahlonega; Lawton B. Evans, of Augusta; Miss E. Gertrude Ford, of Demorest; Miss Margaret Hall, of Wesleyan; Miss Agnes E. Harris, of Macon; O. Keith, of Washington, D. C.; W. H. Kilpatrick, of Mercer; F. A. Merrill, of the Union Baptist Institute; Jere M. Pound, of Milledgeville; Steve R. Roberts, of Emory; Miss Jessie M. Snyder, of Milledgeville; H. E. Thompson, of Savannah, and Miss Emily P. Wilburn, of Hancock.

The best course of study yet arranged for a summer school in Georgia has been arranged for this session. This year the entire session will be conducted on the university campus, so as to avoid the inconvenience to teachers of having to attend some classes on the campus and others at the Normal school, 2 miles distant. The coming session opens June 26 and closes July 27.

The lecture course for this session is one of the best yet arranged.

Dr. Roland D. Grant will lecture during the first week of the session; Dr. Preston W. Search, the second week; Miss Mildred Rutherford, the third week; Hon. Luther Manship, Mrs. W. H. Felton, Governor Terrell and Acting Chancellor Barrow, the fourth week, and Superintendent Lawton B. Evans, the fifth week.

FAILED TO SPELL NAME LOOF LIRPA BACKWARD

HAWKINSVILLE, GA., April 1.—(Special.)—Friday afternoon's issue of The Courier published an article stating that the United States revenue cutter Loof Lirpa, at that time in the Altamaha river, would reach Hawkinsville on Sunday morning.

The Courier said: The Loof Lirpa is one of the small boats captured from Spain in the late unpleasantness. She was built at Genoa in 1892 and is a twin screw of 2,500 tons displacement and 30 feet by 80 over all. She carries two 6-inch Hotchkiss rapid fire guns, and her crew consists of forty people. Captain Nuf is in charge and will allow visitors aboard and the sailors will be given shore leave, of course, and the sight of forty blue jackets on our streets will be a sight unusual.

The boat is scheduled to reach the city, according to information furnished, about 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

It is needless to say that a large crowd gathered at the wharf to see the first warship reach a Hawkinsville port. Many here from the country Saturday announced their determination to be here with their families. The children of the town were wild with delight and the discussion was heard on the streets and in the stores.

Some thought of Sunday being April 1, others did not, but it was argued by the former that just because it so happened that the boat would come on April 1 would not prevent them from seeing it—and they went, too.

Engagements were made by some young men to take their young lady friends down.

Some came in from the country and some were here from nearby towns to greet Captain Nuf, take a trip over the small vessel and enjoy a look at Uncle Sam's blue coats.

However sly many thought they were they all had failed to spell Captain "Nuf" and the good ship name "Loof Lirpa" backwards. They had "E. Nuf" when at sunset they could observe nothing down stream except the undisturbed and placid waters of the Ocmulgee.

At noon the author of the article suddenly but quietly took a cruise homeward and could only wish for his own protection by the alleged forty blue coats and the alleged Hotchkiss guns as he tried to slumber away the midnight hours.

He has repented.

THE PEOPLE OF CULLODEN MIX MUSIC AND POLITICS

CULLODEN, GA., April 1.—(Special.) The people of Culloden are mixing music and politics. There are five candidates for the legislature, all prominent men, and in order to find out how they stand on all public issues they were invited to meet here in joint discussion which all agreed to do. Friday night was the night agreed on and every one was here ready to forward his cause. Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Maddux entertained them while in the city. There were fourteen candidates and a good number of visitors in attendance.

The following programme was carried out:

Instrumental duet by Misses Wilson and Fitzpatrick, after which H. T. Fitzpatrick introduced the speakers in the following order:

Colonel Ogden Persons outlined his platform, showing that he stood for all reform measures, and a sufficient pension to support the old soldier in his declining years.

T. J. Hardin said that he had no platform but was in favor of all reform measures.

Duet by Misses Mattie Clair and Olive Chambliss.

Dr. J. F. Lancaster had previously distributed copies of his paper giving his platform. One of the most important planks was to prohibit dealing in futures and all modes of gambling.

A. J. Zellner, the only farmer running, stood for the reform movement and added the biennial sessions of the legislature.

Instrumental solo by Miss Emma Roberts.

Ben. F. Hill, the humorist of the delegation, stated that he was running on his own platform and all others had taken his planks. He said the platform was merely to get in on and then he would do as he pleased.

Duet by Misses Wilson and Castlin.

BIDS FOR PAVING WILL BE OPENED

Interest Felt in Meeting of the Street Committee.

Columbus, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—Much interest is felt in the meeting of the street committee of city council tomorrow, when bids for paving a number of miles of Columbus streets will be opened. The recommendation of the committees as to the character of paving will very probably be adopted by council.

Portions of Broad street, First avenue, Second avenue, Thirteenth street, Fourteenth street, Seventeenth street, Hamilton avenue and Eleventh street are to be paved with either brick or bitulithic, and the extreme upper end of Hamilton avenue for about a mile with macadam.

The work of paving Broad street in the business section is now in progress. People are rejoiced that in a few months' time Columbus' fondest wish will have been met, in that the principal streets will be paved and preparations will be in progress to pave practically the remainder.

Several representatives of paving companies are in the city and a lively advertising campaign as to the merit of the different paving materials is in evidence in the columns of the local newspapers.

There's Health -IN- Lemon Juice.

Various experiments by eminent scientists have proven the great value of lemons in destroying the germs of typhoid and other fevers. Germs of diseases are deposited in the system by the failure of the bowels to act regularly. MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR is an ideal laxative, made from lemons, and has no equal for cleansing the system of all impurities. It acts promptly on the bowels, liver and kidneys, and does not gripe or cause any unpleasantness. 50c. per bottle at all drug stores.

WRECK VICTIMS IN CITY HOSPITAL

Eight of the Injured Cared for in Macon.

Negro Porter, Smith, of Atlanta, is Dead, and Baggagemaster Phillips, Also of Atlanta, Will Suffer No Permanent Injury.

Constitution Bureau, 467 Second Street, Macon, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—Eight of the injured persons taken from the wreck of the Chicago and Florida Special on the Southern railway 1 mile north of Holton yesterday afternoon are still in the city hospital here. The negro porter, William Smith, of Atlanta, who suffered a crushed skull and a fracture of both legs, never regained consciousness and expired this morning at 5 o'clock. Baggage Master A. C. Phillips, of Atlanta, who was the other occupant of the combination club and smoker when it was shattered to splinters, is improving and will sustain no lasting injury.

Others who were hurt occupied cars in the rear and the marvelous escape of the baggage master has been much discussed by those who experienced the shake up. Those who are now in the hospital are C. D. Shelton and I. F. Studebaker, of New Carlisle, Ohio; F. P. Torrence and M. A. Smith, of Springfield, Ohio; Misses Mary Goode and Kathleen Lohman, of Chattanooga; and Baggage Master Phillips and a negro porter, George Stevens, of Atlanta. Slight cuts and bruises, some painful and severe, make up the total injuries.

Long distance 'phone messages have reached Macon today from Duluth, Minn., Columbus and Springfield, Ohio, and Buffalo, N. Y. The patients at the hospital have communicated by this means and by telegraph with their friends who were eager to learn of their safety. All of the injured are fast regaining normal physical condition and will be able to leave Macon within a short time.

The Southern between here and Atlanta has resumed traffic over the road, the wreckage has been cleared and the remaining days of the Florida special will witness the run of the regular schedule. There remains only a few more days before this train will be taken off. It is said to have been run with a great degree of success and the accident of yesterday is probably the most serious since the inauguration of the schedule.

Macon was the scene of a great deal of excitement last night. Extra editions of papers on the streets carried all sorts of statements and the people here, as well as in other cities, eagerly sought to learn who was injured and killed. The run of ambulances from the Southern depot indicated terrible disaster, but statements came rapidly to the effect that none of the passengers were badly injured and the acounts of the wreck as given by those arriving safely soon established their own good fortune.

GRILL ROOM OPENED TODAY.

Delightful New Features of the Kimball House To Be Inaugurated.

The palm garden and grill room, one of the most elegant and delightful features of any hotel in the south, will be formally opened at the New Kimball this morning.

The room, 90 by 50 feet, located right in the center of the hotel building, has been designed and constructed for a palm garden and grill room. The ceiling and the walls have been under the finishing touches of painters for several days and this morning when all obstruction to view has been removed a dream of beauty will be presented. The seven large windows around the area will be filled with tropical plants and palms, while running vines and hanging baskets of flowers will give the room the effect of a veritable fairyland.

The center of the large room will be occupied by the Kimball orchestra.

Atlanta ladies will be guests of honor today and there is every reason to believe that each guest will keep the souvenirs and favors which have been prepared for them.

All Candidates Arrested.

Odessa, April 1.—On the eve of the preliminary elections among the workmen of sixty factories, all the sixty-six candidates were arrested because they displayed too liberal tendencies and the authorities directed the voters to choose other candidates belonging to the reactionary parties.

Professor Zanchevsky, rector of the university here, will be placed on trial before the senate. He is charged with organizing the student militia which defended the Jews during the massacres last November.

Governor General Kaulbers has prohibited all election meetings, alleging that he fears disorders.

FIRST ELECTION IN PETERSBURG

Strange Scenes in Russian Capital.

Close of Campaign Marked by Great Activity and Considerable Excitement, but No Speeches Were Allowed--Voters Appealed to in Handbills.

St. Petersburg, April 1.—Tomorrow, the city of St. Petersburg will choose electors to the municipal congress, which, in turn, will elect six members to the national parliament. The banks will be closed and business suspended.

Many rumors are afloat that the revolutionists intend to create disorders and throw bombs in the polling places to discredit the elections, but the authorities declare that nothing of the sort will take place.

The close of the campaign was marked by great activity, and considerable excitement, but these did not compare with the scenes at American political meetings. Speeches were prohibited but hundreds of thousands of circulars were mailed to voters and the constitutional democrats employed the expedient of dispatching their reading matter by messenger in order that it would be sure to reach the persons to whom it was sent. The newspapers are filled with appeals to the voters.

Constitutionalists Claim Victory.

The strength of the constitutional democrats has compelled the moderates and conservatives to pool issues, and the octoberists and progressive economists, and the law and order, and trade and industries parties have put in the field a 'block' ticket. Nevertheless, the constitutional democrats claim a certain sweeping victory, and the indications are that they will carry the day.

They enjoy the advantage of playing their cards above board, having openly announced that their delegates are pledged to vote for six of the following nine candidates for parliament: M. Kedrine, the well-known lawyer; M. Roditcheff, a members of the executive committee of the bar association; M. Petrunkevitch, a brother of Ivan Petrunkevitch, the zemstvoist of Tver; M. Naboukoff, leader of the liberal party; M. Hessen, editor of Rech; M. Vinevr, M. Petrojivsky, M. Fedoroff and M. Kaarieff.

The "block," on the contrary, is carefully concealing the names of their parliamentary candidates, and are contenting themselves with the publication of a list of 160 candidates to the municipal congress. It is evident they wear that if the names are revealed, the radicals will concentrate to defeat them by rallying to the cry of "block."

Reactionaries Fear Division.

The emperor and the liberty and integrity of Russia party, a so-called party of democratic reforms, has thrown in its lot with the constitutional democrats. The reactionaries, realizing that it is too dangerous to be divided in strength, have not placed a ticket in the field, and will vote for the "block."

With the exception of The Novoe Vremya and The Slovo, which are supporting the "block," all the newspapers have declared for the constitutional democrats. The Novoe Vremya viciously attacks the parliamentary candidates of the constitutional democrats, characterizing them as "renegades," "Jews" and "Poles."

The city of St. Petersburg is divided into twelve districts, each with a single polling place, which elects from five to twenty delegates.

The polls will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Miss Nichols Made Sponsor.

Waycross, Ga., April 1.—The South Georgia camp, Confederate veterans, met at the court house here Saturday morning, the meeting being called to order by Commander R. P. Bird. The principal object of the meeting was to select delegates to the general reunion to be held at New Orleans, April 25, 26 and 27, and the following delegates were elected: T. S. Paine, W. R. Harbin, A. Sessoms, W. M. Harbin and Lemuel Johnson. The following were elected alternates: C. A. Sheldon, R. P. Bird, E. Cottingham, Jackson Grimes and A. P. Perham, Sr. Miss Lillian Nichols was elected sponsor with power to appoint her maids of honor.

LITTLE CHILD BURNS TO DEATH

Everett Callaway, One Year Old, Expires in Agony.

Screams of Her Baby Called Mother, Who Extinguished Flames With Her Skirts, but the Little Boy Was Fatally Burned.

While playing in the fire in the grate in his mother's room, little Everett Callaway, the 1-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Callaway, of 15 Glenn street, was so badly burned Saturday morning that he died about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

The little tot was all alone in his mother's room, and was amusing himself by lighting a stick of kindling wood from the coals in the grate, when in some way his clothes were set afire, and in a moment were in a blaze. His frenzied screams called his mother, who was in the rear of the house. She rushed to the room, and, wrapping her baby in her skirts, extinguished the flames.

The child, however, had been so badly burned that death was certain. Dr. P. L. Moon was summoned immediately, and did all that he could to alleviate the terrible agony of the child. After several hours of suffering, death ended its trouble.

The funeral services were conducted at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the mortuary chapel of H. G. Poole & Co., and the body was taken to Fayetteville, Ga., for interment.

THE real secret of fine Champagne is in the grape it's made from.

Skillfull making and conscientious care in ageing are essential, but it's the grape that makes the flavor.

Great Western Extra Dry Champagne

is made from grapes identical with those grown in the best Champagne districts of France.

This ideal quality of fruit, due to nearly one hundred years' cultivation of soil and vine in the old Great Western Vineyards—plus the Old World method of Champagne-making and five years ageing—gives you in Great Western an American Champagne with all the delicate flavor and bouquet of the costly foreign brands.

And at half the price. Try Great Western.

The duty, not the quality, makes the difference in what you pay.

WHEN THE LEADER OF CLAN O'HARA ARRIVES FINE MONUMENT WILL BE ERECTED TO HIS WIFE

A GROUP OF THE GYPSY YOUNGSTERS.

TOM O'HARA, leader of the great O'Hara clan, was reported hurrying to Atlanta yesterday and his arrival is being hourly expected by some twenty-five families of this same roving band, who, in tents and shelter wagons, are camped at the end of Marietta street, near the Exposition mills.

High on a hill where the city of Atlanta loses itself in the green fields of Georgia, some two hundred men, women and children await the coming of their leader and with his arrival one of the most interesting and impressive ceremonies in the history of the Gate City.

This is the mission of Tom O'Hara, the lonesome leader of his clan, to erect a tombatone, a simple monument of loving memory and tender regard at the last bedside of Annie, his girl wife, who, just one year ago, was laid to her last rest in Westview cemetery.

The stone has already been prepared and carved in Italy, and its erection at the grave of the girl-woman but 17 years old, will be made a memorable occasion in the story of this roving band, whose members live rather than effect the simple life, just now so much in vogue.

Covering the hillside, which gently slopes to meet the level of Marietta street, this canvas settlement, with its tethered mules and horses, presents a view Arcadian in its simplicity and even suggests the Biblical patriarchs and while impression grows as the number of children still further suggest the antirace suicide epoch that belonged to the plural wives of Abraham, the colony seems many miles and centuries distant from the shepherd kings of Judea as a closer view shows cooking utensils of modern enamel ware and the pungent odor of frying ham—the forbidden fruit of the twelve tribes of Israel—meets the occasional perfume of the peach blossom and destroys it absolutely. Then, too, there is the odor of tobacco prevalent, the women as well as the men worshipping at the shrine of the goddess Nicotine.

Fortune-tellers there are among the woman folks, but horse swapping, the profession of David Harum, is the principal trade or business of these wanderers. Like the sheep shearing bands of Mexico in the far west, these members of the Clan O'Hara move across the southland, usually arriving at certain places at fixed intervals during the year. In their migrations just two cities stand as headquarters. One is Nashville, Tenn., and the other is Atlanta.

No Dead to Bury Now.

At no other place does this Clan O'Hara bury its dead. When a reporter yesterday asked if any funerals would mark their present trip to this city, one woman, evidently in high position and authority, answered, "No! Thank God, we have no dead to bury." And then reverently crossing herself, "God hold the day when we must leave the living to care for the dead," and many of the little children stopped in the midst of their playing to make the sign of the cross in deference to the prayer of this woman.

Certainly there could be no more appropriate name for this new canvas suburb of Atlanta than "Camp Roosevelt." It seems almost possible to see the storks tethered with the mules and horses. These children are present in every stage and age of infancy and childhood and even more so. Wandering about this temporary village it is even possible to hear the fluttering of stork wings in promise of such happy events as belong to the season when all nature is teaching the lesson of spring blossoms as a presage of what is yet to come. There is also lack of formality and conventionality which must appeal to certain pessimists who insist that all is mock modesty.

Living so very close to the bosom of mother earth, these children of nature follow her laws after the manner of "honi soit qui mal y pense" and when lunch time arrives wee Willie Winkie sure gets his and there is no rushing to cover on the part of these who live in the open. And they are not Mellen's food babies or of the bottle brand either—not by a very large majority. And as a result, a hardier, healthier lot of tots couldn't be found anywhere. Their mothers are the same way and in spite of the fact that among all the confidential garments that blossomed from cloth lines hung in the open there was never a hint at new fangled healta underwear or certain arrangements which are supposed to emancipate women from the slavery of modern clothing.

GYPSY MOTHER AND CHILD.

John O'Hara in Command.

Until the arrival of Tom O'Hara, his brother, John, is looked to as the second in command when it comes to the consideration of serious matters of moment in council. John O'Hara's tent is well in the foreground of the camp, and distinctive in that it is made of blue and white canvas. While these nomads are very reticent in regard to speaking about the inner workings of their order, they stated yesterday that they reported to certain officials in Italy. There is no mistaking the fact that these are genuine gypsies, and while there are many Irish, there are many who were born in Italy. Among those prominent in the clan are John Granite, his wife and son, a handsome little chap of 9 years. Little Johnny is evidently a great favorite among the children, and is already exerting his authority. This was proved when in a game of high-spy Johnny wanted to be "it." While it was evident that there were many others who wanted this same privilege, Johnny's announcement was accepted as final, and there was no discussion regarding the matter.

Owing to the large families, there are over two hundred gypsies now in camp, and more are expected to arrive every day. Most of the present families came in a body from South Carolina. While there is no funeral scheduled for this trip, it was rumored yesterday that one of the two or three romances now in progress may result in a gypsy wedding during their stay in Atlanta.

It is just a year ago the 1st of April that toward the great office buildings which mark the center of this southern metropolis wended its way a calvacade strangely weird, beautiful, unique. There was no music to mark the regular step of those who either marched or rode in carriages save the single note of the tolling bell of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. There was no uniform to mark these hundreds of the Clan O'Hara other than the plain clothes that show the file of the American soldiers of the army of peace. Broad of shoulder, there was nothing of the erect carriage that suggests the regular army, for the heads of these men were bowed in that particular way that speaks silently but eloquently of grief. Women and children formed an important part in this regiment of mourners and from the tiny tots, crying they knew not why, to the stifled sobs of the women and the quiet tears of brave men, there was everywhere present the voiceless music of sorrow—the weeping, unspoken word that was the cry of the column.

Funeral of Annie O'Hara.

It was the funeral of pretty Annie O'Hara, the girl wife of the man who now comes to Atlanta to do her honor.

And then, when the funeral services were concluded, the procession again made its way from the church to Westview cemetery. At the cemetery, massed on every side of the mound, the husband standing nearest of all, the girl wife was lowered to her last resting place, mourned in death as she had been loved in life by her side Tom, to whom she meant everything, and to those beyond forming as they did a beautiful half acre of friendship, the men, women and children of the great Clan O'Hara, to whom as the wife of their young leader and for her own personality she meant so much.

A man is either a big success or a flat failure.

There is no particular satisfaction in passing from this life leaving behind a small business and the life insurance.

The man who is capable of doing that much can do from ten to fifty times as much with the expenditure of not much more physical or mental energy.

A manufacturer should reach out for all the trade there is, and, while no man can get it all, enough can be secured to score a brilliant business triumph.

The man who is content with little will, in these hustling times, be likely to find himself obliged to be content with nothing. Advertising for business is the way to get it, and it is only a question of proper advertising methods that stands between any manufacturer of good goods and success.

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL and THE SATURDAY EVENING POST are profitable advertising mediums, not only because combined they reach a total of 1,700,000 homes and are read by 8,500,000 people, but because every subscriber pays for his or her magazine. People don't pay for magazines they don't read, and magazines that are not read can be of no use to the advertiser.

MOORE MEMORIAL.

At the Moore Memorial church, the pastor, Dr. A. R. Holderby, preached yesterday morning, on the subject: "The Search for a Man."

He took his text from Jeremiah v, 1:

"Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad places thereof if ye can find a man."

In part, he said:

"God ordered the prophet Jeremiah to have Jerusalem searched for a man. Not to find a man who had been lost, but to find a real man—a true man—a godly man. There were men in Jerusalem, but none such as God wanted. There was no man who measured up to God's ideal.

"Good King Josiah was now dead, and there was no man to take his place. The church today is in search of a man—an ideal man—a man after God's own heart.

"Such men are scarce in the church.

"God needs men—clean men. Professing Christians and church members are not hard to find, but true men are scarce. Where are they? God is in search of the consecrated man. Never before has the church needed consecrated men as now.

"The days are evil, and God is in search of men who are consecrated to the cause of truth and righteousness. The church stands much in need of men who are willing to devote their lives to the interests of Christ's kingdom. The church also is in need of men who are true to their convictions. Men do not need to know the truth so much, but rather to have the courage to act upon their convictions of the truth already known.

"How rarely do we find a man in the church today who has the courage of his convictions. The ministry is in special need of men of the highest moral courage. The pulpit in some churches has already been disgraced by men who are devoid of moral courage—courage to declare the whole counsel of God.

"God needs men in the ministry who are not afraid to denounce sin in all of its forms, and in high places.

"It is very easy to attack sin in the slums, but it is quite a different thing to denounce the licensed rottenness in the 'Four Hundred.' The pulpit is muzzled by the rich. God is searching the streets of our cities for the man who will preach against the respectable and damnable sins of the rich, as well as the sins of the poor.

"God is also in search of men who will be loyal to Christ and the church. It is hard to find such men today.

"Disloyalty to Christ is one of the great sins of the church today, and it is this that is hindering the coming of the kingdom.

"Not only does the church need 'men' today, but the world is greatly in need of men—true men. The world is in search for men as rulers, law-makers, statesmen. But where are they? Clean, godly men are needed in politics. But no political party wants a man for office who stands for temperance, purity and honesty.

"As a rule, no clean, upright, honest man need go into the race for office today. He is likely to be left behind.

"Let any two men run for any office today, one a clean and honest man and the other a whisky-ring, gambling, 'open-town' man, and the latter named will be put into office almost to a certainty.

"Run to and fro, seek a man, if there be any, that executes judgment and seeketh the truth.'

"Surely, this is the man for whom God is searching to rule in church and state and home. From the minister in the pulpit down to the private member of the church in the pew, the true man is much needed.

"But he is a scarce article in this day of sham and deceit and moral cowardice. The state also is in need of the true, fearless, godly men in her legislative halls, on the judge's bench, in the jury box, and in every other office.

"The home, above all other places, is in search of such a man as God wants.

"The home is the place where the man is made what God would have him be, or where he is spoiled and made a curse to the world.

"A man is needed as the head of the home—a true and godly man, who can govern and control his children and set before them an example of holy living.

"But the home today as a rule, is cursed by ungodly, intemperate and weak-kneed fathers, who call themselves men. He is no man who can not control his children."

TWO DENOMINATIONS JOIN IN COMMUNION

Scene at Inman Park Presbyterian Church When Methodists and Presbyterians Were Leaving After Joining in Communion Service.

Dr. A. L. Phillips Says Christian Spirit Should Be Like the "Atlanta Spirit"--Ubiquitous and Strong.

"THERE'S no trouble detecting an Atlanta man," said Rev. Dr. A. L. Phillips in his sermon at the Inman Park Presbyterian church yesterday, "for before you have been in conversation with him 15 minutes he will have mentioned the name of Atlanta 500 times." He said this to illustrate the statement, which he was emphasizing, that if Christ was in any man as strongly as the Atlanta spirit is in every Atlantan, there would be no difficulty experienced in knowing whether or not a man was a Christian or had Christ indwelling within him.

The church was packed yesterday morning, and the joint communion of the Methodists and Presbyterians, which took place immediately after the service, was unusually solemn and impressive. Indeed it was a scene long to be remembered by those who were present. The communion was officiated over jointly by the pastor of the Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Ficklin, who sat on one side of the communion table, and Rev. Henry B. Mays, who sat on the other side of the table.

Among the prominent officers of the two churches who were present and assisted in serving the communion were Colonel Asa G. Candler, representing the Methodist church, and Mr. George E. King, representing the Presbyterian church.

The opening prayer of the morning service was by Rev. Henry B. Mays, of the Methodist church. The first words of this prayer, "Help us, O God, to be glad we are come together in Thy house," furnish a keynote to the entire service which followed. Perfect harmony and joyous Christian fellowship was in the very atmosphere of the church; and as a result of the service it is anticipated that the spiritual life of this part of the city will be very much quickened.

In fact, the service was so enjoyed by all that Mr. Mays announced that the Methodist church was to have on Easter Sunday an anniversary service and that they would expect the Inman Park Presbyterians to join them in the service. Dr. Ficklin responded promptly that while he could not speak for the session of the church, he felt confident he was safe in saying that the Inman Park Presbyterian church would be closed on that day and that the congregation of the church would be found worshipping with the Methodists.

Just preceding the sermon of Dr. Phillips, Dr. Ficklin said:

"We feel that God is granting us today a number of blessings. One which we esteem very highly is the presence with us today of the congregation of our Methodist neighbor. We want to bid them welcome, and to say to them that they are in the house of their Father and our Father, and we trust they will feel at home, and get a blessing out of the service."

Dr. Phillips' Sermon.

Dr. Phillips took as his text the verse in Colossians, which reads, "Which is Christ in you; the hope of glory."

He was exceedingly eloquent at times, and brought to bear all the power of his quick and powerful mind in demonstrating that this text represented the heart of the Christian life. He endeavored to show the whole of the gospel was tied up in the indwelling of Christ, which was the assurance to the Christian of his glory hereafter.

In part, he said:

"In this chapter, it is explicitly declared that Christ is God—that He is truly divine. In fact, His divinity is strongly put forward. And that God was in Christ there can be no shadow of a doubt—that he was, in truth, one of the persons of the Godhead is a fact of the world's history and of Christian experience.

"And Christ now dwells with men. Here is an unraveling of the mystery of God in man. He works in our hope of glory.

"Paul is a wonderful teacher and expounder. His mind, when heated, would throw out sparks like the anvil, and every spark is a nugget full of truth and life. Hunt up these nuggets for yourself. They are the gospel compressed into a nutshell. It is our duty and pleasure to elaborate on them occasionally.

"What does the first part of our text mean—'Christ in a man.' How can we find out if Christ be in any man? Why there is no trouble about it. No more trouble about detecting whether Christ is in you than it is detecting an Atlanta man—and it is easy to detect an Atlantan, for in a fifteen-minute conversation on the train or anywhere, he will mention Atlanta 500 times. And so, if Christ is in a man, it will come out just as surely as does Atlanta come out of the man who is a resident of your beautiful city.

"Christ in a man means that God has such a grip over him that whenever you come in contact with him Christ flies out of him. But there are certain signs that never fail to show up if Christ be in a man.

"First of all, it shows itself in his knowledge. He then knows a thing or two. And in this connection there are just two things he must know—that he is a sinner and that Jesus Christ is his Savior. The man with Christ within him has these two things as a fixed knowledge within him.

"In the second place, he must have the spirit of Christ. And by this, I do not mean a perfunctory habit of any kind. I mean he must have the holy spirit in him.

"In the third place, he must have the energy of Christ. The fusing within him of the word of God and the Holy Spirit creates an energy which must spend itself in deeds which are Christlike. He must take up his master's work and carry it forward.

"And what is Glory, the second part of our text? I confess I do not know. Do you? It is a heavenly word, and belongs to the vocabulary of God. But it is a synonym for heaven. And heaven will mean, amongst other things, the ability to see God better. There are whole continents of God's love yet unexplored by man. Then heaven is a place free from sin. All over the world, sin has crawled and left its trail—but in heaven there is no sin."

JACK AND "BUGS" BATTLE TODAY

Chesbro and Raymond Will Toy with the Stick Boys.

Atlanta and New York Managers Will Put Forth Their Strongest Front in Effort to Develop Their Team Work.

Thursday—Atlanta vs. Augusta.
Friday—Atlanta vs. New York.
Tech vs. Trinity.
Saturday—Atlanta vs. New York.
Tech vs. Trinity.

Atlanta fans will have the pleasure this afternoon of greeting their old friends of several years' standing, the New York Americans, provided the elements are kind. Griff will send his athletes against Billy Smith's squad in the first of four games to be played this week. The game will begin at 3 o'clock and if the sun is shining a rare good game should be pulled off, as both sets of athletes are anxious for the fray.

Griffith will send in his two best pitchers, the great Jack Chesbro and "Smiling Al" Orth, one of the foxiest of the foxy. Between them, local bingles promise to be scarce. To offset such pitching Manager Smith will send in the only "Bugs" Raymond. What Raymond did to Boston last week is still remembered. Childs and Curtis may also get a chance.

GAME WITH TECH DOUBTFUL

Collegians May Not Be Able to Play New York Thursday.

Manager S. W. Mays, of the Tech baseball team, said last night that the game between the collegians and the New York Americans, tentatively arranged for Thursday, may be called off as it is doubtful if his team will be able to play on that day.

By some error the game was originally set for Tuesday, a contest between Atlanta and the New Yorkers also being arranged for Tuesday. Yesterday Manager Griffith sought to have the date with the Techs changed to Thursday, but this may be impossible. Tech plays the University of Georgia Wednesday and Trinity Friday and Saturday, and the week will be a very busy one for the amateurs.

FINN GETS JACK GILBERT.

Crack Outfielder Secured in Exchange for Billy Phyle.

Nashville, Tenn., April 1.—(Special.)—Billy Phyle, who was purchased from the Memphis club a few days ago, has been traded to George Tebeau's Kansas City American Association team for Outfielder Jack Gilbert and Infielder Castro.

Jack Gilbert was with Finn at Little Rock for four years and while in Dixie was considered one of the best outfielders in this league. Castro is unknown here except by reputation. He is a collegian from the vicinity of New York city.

ATLANTA TEAM LOOKS GOOD TEN DAYS BEFORE OPENING

Billy Smith This Week Begins To Use the Hatchet. Five Men Must Be Let Go.

MANAGER BILLY SMITH will have to begin with his little hatchet this week. Only ten days remain before the opening of the league season and his present multitudinous squad of anxious athletes must be cut down to a number something like 20 when regular campaigning begins. He figures on starting the cruel war with, say, seven pitchers, three catchers, five infielders and four outfielders—nineteen men who must by May 1 be reduced still further.

At least five men will this week be turned out to graze in other fields. Because of which fact, there will doubtless be some tall stunts done this week. The bad weather of the past two weeks has prevented a fair tryout of the new men and with this week to settle the fate of many of them, all will be handing out everything they have in the shop. There is nothing like a prospective pink slip to fill the brawny athlete with zest and ginger.

And when it comes to the pinch Billy will have a hard job, particularly in the matter of the pitchers. Every man jack of these many twirlers has shown up well and when it comes to reducing Messrs. Harley, Raymond, Utley, Burnum, Zeller, Shaffer, Sparks, Childs and Curtis down to six or seven, it will take much thought and hardness of heart.

It looks, however, as though Harley, Utley, Raymond, Zeller, Burnum and Curtis are certainties till May. This is not to disparage the ability of Messrs. Sparks and Childs. The former has done most excellent work, his only handicap appearing to be a lack of experience in fast company. Childs has so far had no chance to show his form, but Manager Smith says he looks better than ever before, being down to weight.

Jeems Archer, Jack Evers and Sid Smith, who arrives today, will be the catchers at the start of the season. Kahlkoff wants to go to one of the South Atlantic league teams. Archer is the best in this league, and Evers is doing far better work than he did for Macon last year. Sid Smith is a hustling aggressive fellow, a hard hitter and a most capable utility man.

Here's the infield for Atlanta: Jim Fox on first; Otto Jordan on second; Whitey Morse at short and no decision yet among Tiebald, Hoffman and Noblett for third sack. Noblett will play second today. Hoffman has a bad arm and may not get a show this week, which will give Tiebald a fine chance to show his worth.

The outfield looks like Crozier and Curtis, with Winters and Pleiss to scrap for right garden. Curtis's hitting is worth his job, he is fast on the bases and isn't quite as bad a fielder as some of the fans seem to think. Placed in center with Crozier to his right and George Winters or Pleiss to his left the outer garden will be well cared for. And, my how that big fellow can sting the pellet!

"From an ante-bellum view point, the team's strength will lie in the ability of the pitching staff and the batting of the regulars. Unless things change, the club will not be notably fast on the bases, although Morse, Jordan, Curtis and Archer are no slouches and few are as good as Crozier and Pleiss. The infield ought to be iron-clad, while the catchers will be better than any others in the league.

It really looks as though Billy Smith has a goodly bunch of men. The team work and the harmony are the things that will make it a winner.

GEORGIA COLLEGIANS BEGIN PENNANT SERIES

Fight for the State Championship Is Now on with Tech in the Lead---Smithies Play Georgia Wednesday in Athens.

Georgia College League.

	Played	Won	Lost	Pct.
Tech	1	1	0	1.000
Georgia	0	0	0	.—
Mercer	1	0	1	.000

THE fight for the state intercollegiate baseball championship for 1906 is on in earnest now, the game Saturday between Tech and Mercer being the first of the schedule in which each of the three teams will play three games with its two opponents. Tech won first blood in a pretty game, following the very one sided victory in Friday's exhibition contest.

Wednesday the Smithies will journey over to Athens where they will meet the Red and Black athletes, who under the training of Tommy Stouch seem to be stronger than in several years past. Georgia's double-jointed defeat of Clemson Saturday shows the team is a pretty good one.

College baseball is even more uncertain a sport than the professional variety and it is a foolhardy one who will venture predictions about the latter. At the same time, it looks as though the fight is between Tech and Georgia this year. Coach Hyatt, down at Mercer, has had a hard time, with only one or two veterans to build about. In young Roy Smith, however, he seems to have found a coming pitcher.

Georgia and Tech both are builded around a nucleus of veterans. Heisman had Craig Day, George Butler, Tommy McMillan, Neil Hamilton and Brown to start with, all men of several years' experience, and Ed Lafitte, the best prep pitcher these parts have turned up in a long time. Those men would make a most excellent backbone for any team. Day and Lafitte are star pitchers and Butler himself is an oldtimer in the box, fully up to the collegiate pitching average. And it is a sure thing, that a good pitcher is half a university team.

Over at Athens Stouch did not find so many veterans, but seems to have developed a well rounded team. In Captain Arthur Sullivan he has a pitcher who when good is the peer of any and the superior of most amateurs. Some pretty safe critics have said that Sullivan is in a class with Weldon Henley and Will Gunn of years agone. Franklin, the University School man, seems to be a find as a catcher, and Fielder is a new pitcher who worked out his first game Saturday. He did good work. McDonald at first, Derrick at second, and the two Hodgsons in the outfield are new men, while Ginsberg at short and Erwin at third, have had one bare year of experience. From the way the entire team hammered the Clemson pitchers Saturday and went through sixteen innings with only five errors, two by a substitute catcher, it appears the team has been pretty well rounded.

Mercer may come, but must come fast to get in the running.

The intercollegiate league, now in its third year, has done much for amateur athletics in the state, and is worthy of perpetuation. Cleaner, purer and better sport has been the result, the heart bunnings, petty spite and incriminations of old have been wiped up, and the colleges seem to be playing for the sport's sake.

GRIFFITH COMES FOR FIVE GAMES

New York Americans Play Four with Atlanta.

"Old Fox" is Still Pursued by Hard Luck, His Promising Young Catcher, Ira Thomas, Being Laid Up—Bad Weather in Alabama.

Clarke Griffith and his New York Americans arrived yesterday morning from Birmingham where they have been in training quarters. The Highlanders are stopping at the Aragon Hotel.

There are twenty-seven of them, including Manager Griffith. Named, they sound as follows: Pitchers: Jack Chesbro, Walter Clarkson, Al Orth, Leroy, the Indian twirler, Frank ("Noodles") Hahn, formerly with the Cincinnati Reds; B. Keefe, J. Whalen, Doc Newton, Ambrose Putnam, Hughes, and Billy Hogg, making an array of eleven slab artists.

The infielders number six, and are Hal Chase, first base; Jimmy Williams, second baseman; George Moriarity, third baseman; Frank LaPorte, third baseman; J. Yeager, utility infielder, and Elberfeld, the crack short stop, will arrive tonight from Chattanooga, where he has been visiting his family.

There are five outfielders: Eddie Hahn, formerly with New Orleans, Frank Delehanty, with Birmingham last year; Pat Dougherty, Willie Keeler and Wid. Conroy. Conroy was played at third base last year, but Griffith thinks the little athlete will make a better outfielder than infielder.

Three catchers are with the Highlanders: McGuire, Kleinow and Thomas. Trainer Martin is also a member of the yankee squad.

Bad Weather in Alabama.

"The boys haven't been able to put their noses out of doors for a week," said Manager Griffith, yesterday, "why the weather over in Birmingham is something to put a baseball manager to thinking. When it wasn't too wet to play, it was too cold, so there you have it."

"What are your chances for winning the flag, Griff?" was asked the foxey chieftain.

"I have nothing to say," replied the Highland captain, courteously, but firmly, then after a minute's silence he added, "except that we'll make somebody hustle."

"It's hard to tell anything about your chances," continued the head of the New York Americans. "In 1904 we had the pennant all but won, then Boston beat us out in the last series. Last year with the same team we finished lower than we should have, on account of sickness in our camp.

"As it is now one of my men is sick in bed with an attack of indigestion. The sick man is Ira Thomas, one of my new catchers. 'Tom' has been ailing since we came south.

"Yeager, my utility infielder, has been called to the bedside of his dying mother, and there is a sore throat epidemic among my men, at least half-dozen men having that troublesome complaint.

"I should be able to get together a good team out of the men I have signed for the season. I have kept Ambrose Puttmann, instead of sending him to Toronto, as I thought I would. Then I have imported Jimmy Whalen from Frisco, and Keene, a promising youngster from Tacoma, both of whom are pitchers. Hal Chase, who I think will be the greatest first baseman in the world with a few more years experience, is still with me and I have switched Wid. Conroy from third base to the outfield. Conroy's place will be taken by LaPorte, of Buffalo, probably.

"Frank Delehanty has reported and is satisfied to remain with me. He and Eddie Hahn are two southern League recruits, and both are doing well in the big league.

"The weather is simply great here, compared to what it has been in Birmingham for the past week or two. My men have been out on the streets all day enjoying the weather thoroughly after being cooped in the Alabama town. If this weather will keep up there won't be any doubt about the club being in shape when the season opens up.

"Vaughan Has Good Team."

"What do I think about the Birmingham team? I can't compare Birmingham with any other Southern League team yet, not having seen any team in this league but Birmingham work. It wouldn't be fair to the other managers to say Birmingham is best, but Vaughan has a good team. He has a strong outfield, a medium infield and a pitching staff that is hard to beat in a minor league.

"We play five games here, four with Billy Smith's team and one with the Tech team.

"On account of a mistake of the secretary of the club, my team had two games scheduled for one day, one with Tech and the other with Atlanta, on the 3rd of April, Tuesday.

"I have seen Manager Mays of the Tech club, and have arranged to play his team on Thursday, April 5, and the date on the 3rd will hold good with Atlanta.

"I understand Atlanta has a good team and I intend to use my regular team for one reason in order to win and the other in order to get team work down pat. You see we have no more exhibition games after leaving here. We go right straight to the American League Park and there go through our signal practice, and other work until the season opens.

"I have agreed to send a second team on ahead of me to play Lynchburg, Va., but this is not my regular team, understand. The reason I have this game scheduled there is because Al Orth is a resident of that place and the inhabitants of the town want to see Al work. I have turned over a sort of Yannigan team to Orth and he will take them up to Lynchburg ahead of the regular club.

Didn't Know Atlanta.

"A funny thing happened to the boys and myself when we arrived here," concluded Griff, "I thought the train was pulling into the regular old Union depot instead of a new terminal station. I had heard nothing of the new shed. I told the fellows to walk on up to the hotel and that I would come on behind when the baggage was straightened out.

"The men walked and I followed, thinking they knew where they were going. After walking a couple of miles I began to wonder where I was, and only found the way to the Aragon after asking a policeman."

With the Highlanders came four sporting scribes of repute, the veteran Sam Crane, of The New York Journal, Bozeman Bulger, of the The World, George McCormick, of The Mail and Express, and Chas. Mathison, of The Globe.

OFFICER IS HURT BY GIANT NEGRO

Patrolman Covington Badly Injured Yesterday Morning.

Kick in the Abdomen Put Policeman on the Ground Writhing in Agony—Negro Made His Escape.

As the result of an encounter with a big negro he was trying to arrest yesterday morning Officer B. J. Covington, one of the well-known members of the police force, is in rather a serious condition at his home, 82 West Merritts avenue.

He was kicked in the abdomen by the negro, who then took the patrolman's pistol from him and escaped.

It was shortly after daylight yesterday morning that Officer Covington saw a negro prowling around in the front yard of a Houston street residence. He told the negro to move on. The man answered impudently and started to run. This aroused the suspicions of the officer, who attempted to arrest the negro.

A fight resulted. The officer used his club freely, while the negro used his fists and appeared to be endeavoring to take a knife from his pocket. Officer Covington was on the point of mastering the negro and effecting the arrest when the man resorted to the use of his feet as a means of resisting. Covington was kicked twice in the stomach, but he stood the blows well and continued to endeavor to get his handcuffs upon the negro.

Then came the kick at the base of the stomach which left the patrolman writhing in pain upon the sidewalk and which gave the negro complete mastery of the situation. Seeing that the patrolman was helpless he took away his pistol and escaped.

Patrolman Covington was brought to the police barracks but his condition was so serious that he was sent to his home. During the day a negro giving the name John Elsby was arrested by the detectives as a suspect. Officers believe that he is not the negro who resisted the officer. He will be given a complete investigation today.

MUCH INTEREST IN CIRCUS.

Benefit Performance for the Mystic Shriners Will Draw Large Crowds.

Much interest is being manifested in the performances of the Van Amburg circus which will be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Jackson street show grounds for the benefit of the local temple of the Mystic Shrine.

No tented amusement enterprise on earth has met with more continuous praise and applause than the great Van Amburg shows. An ovation greets this clean organization at every point in its annual tour.

The Van Amburg show has always been among the best and biggest, always in the van, always prolific in leading and sensational features, and always fully equipped with the finest stble of horsts and the most skillful and finished bareback riders, gymnasts and acrobats in the profession; the show has a large, well-ordered and well-selected menagerie containing living, vigorous specimens of all that is strange, rare and curious within the range of natural history, and that this royal Roman hippodrome is a vivid and realistic reproduction of that of the days of the imperial Caesar.

It may be said, however, that to these always prominent and desirable attractions has been added, for the current season, many features so stupendous in magnitude, so overpowering in unprecedented grandeur and impressiveness, and so enormous in the expense necessary to this production, that the features mentioned, grand and wonderful as they are, can at best play but a secondary part.

Oregon Reaches Frisco.

San Francisco, April 1.—The battle ship Oregon arrived here today from Manila via Honolulu. After a short stay here the Oregon will go to the Puget Sound navy yard for repairs. Entering this port the Oregon encountered a severe northwestern wind in which she lost her port quarter boat.

Pattison Passed Good Day.

Columbus, Ohio, April 1.—No bulletins were issued today by the physicians attending Governor Pattison, but reports from the sick room were to the effect that the governor passed a good day, his condition being practically unchanged.

Real Courage.

(From Puck.)

Investor—That certainly is a brave man we have sent out into the desert to find the famous lost mine.

Capitalist—Well, not half so much as the stockholders in the scheme—they are positively foolhardy.

BEAUTIFUL SUNDAY CALLS FOLKS OUT IN THE OPEN

THE fair Sunday promised by Local Forecaster Marbury certainly materialized and some of the Atlantans who had become discouraged over the brand delivered to this city in March began to cheer up and take notice.

It was the first day of April, but happily there was no joke about the weather and all through the sunshiny afternoon the trolleys were packed with Atlantans who hurried out to fill the parks in every direction. With the sunshine came much higher temperatures and there were many multi-colored hats in evidence as proof that the end of the penitential season is near at hand and with it the glad array of gowns and millinery that come with the Easter tide.

And it certainly was a great day for the babies. These little tots have been imprisoned with almost a month of constant rain and chilly weather and their faces were about nine shades paler yesterday than is the usual healthy glow of these members of the rising generation. How the kids from the swaddling up to the toddling kind did enjoy this sudden break from the confines of a nursery that had become fearfully monotonous and tiresome during the long imprisonment. The way they fell over themselves, each other and everything in sight made a beautiful picture against the green carpet. And when one got near enough to hear some feminine voice speak confidently about some peculiarly awkward and bandy-legged tot as being so much more graceful than the other children, it did not require the deductions of a detective to conclude that this was the mother speaking while the proud fathers were just as easy of selection as they smoked and commented on such precocious adventures as the ability of their offspring to cry "gog gog" on the appearance of a canine.

As it was about the first real spring day, the real spring kind, it was also evident that there were many young men whose fancy fondly turned to thoughts of tiny flats, gas stoves and other modern symptoms of the results of romances. Tan shoes and new suits of clothes got very close to shirt-waist girls—so close that fresh laundering will be required to return any semblance of stiffness to the garments in question. But the young girls did not seem to remonstrate very bitterly about the matter. Besides, many a crushed shirt-waist results in a marriage license before another spring, and there were any number of parents who were shoving babymobiles yesterday, which proved the happy evolution possible with the small beginning of crushed linen shirt-waists.

And the animals at the zoo seemed to be in particularly good humor. Perhaps it was the sunshine, which has been so long delayed, but most of them had their best spring manners on, and there was less growling and fighting than any Sunday this long time.

The April sun also seemed to fairly draw the foliage from the trees and bushes on every side, until all Grant park was resplendent in a gown of a thousand shades of green, such as nature alone knows how to blend so beautifully and harmoniously. Violets and other flowers caught the spring spirit and nodded in the most familiar way at perfect strangers, but no one thought wrong of this flirtation. The birds, too, were out in force, and there were no more Sunday carols by these choristers of nature than there has been any day this year.

In every way, the day was an ideal one, and, best of all, it really proved that spring, which has been delayed by so many rains and cold winds, had at last arrived.

TOWN AND GOWN IN BATTLE ON GREEN AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, CONN., April 1.—A police inquiry is being made into the cause of a lively disturbance which occurred early today just outside of police headquarters, in which many scores of Yale undergraduates are said to have taken part. Of late there has been a recrudescence of what are terms locally "town and gown" fights on the streets, but none have been serious enough to warrant police interference until today.

Upon the outbreak of the trouble a squad of officers rushed out of police headquarters to disperse the crowd, which numbered several hundred men, boys and women. The officers were swept aside and roughly handled until they began to use their clubs and drove groups of the disturbers upon the New Haven green. Quiet was not restored for a long time and then not until the hotel proprietor had promised to bail out four students who had been arrested. One student was found unconscious after the fight and taken to the police station.

The police are not certain whether the trouble was between student factions which had been turned out of nearby hotels or an attempt of students to "rush" a crowd of townspeople who had been at a social gathering in a public hall. Several women who were caught in the scrimmage were badly jostled.

Increase in Immigration.

Albany, N. Y., April 1.—During the last three months of 1905 there were 165,540 alien arrivals at the port of New York, according to the quarterly bulletin of the state department of labor made public tonight. This is an increase of 9,000 over the record-breaking figures of a year ago the influx from Italy alone being larger by 20,000 than in the last quarter of 1904.

"New York becomes the home of 62,413 of the newcomers," says the bulletin, "and the fact that 35,728, or one-fourth, of the 140,000 immigrants over 14 years old can neither read nor write, is not altogether reassuring."

FARM AND FARMERS

THE NEXT COTTON CROP.

There are indications abroad in the land that some farmers are going in for a large area in cotton, notwithstanding the experience of the past. Last year we closely pushed a total yield of 11,000,000 bales and the price has been revolving around 10 cents a pound for some weeks, lately climbing to 11 cents and upward. The president of the Cotton Ginners' Association advises farmers to hold the remnant of last year's crop for 15 cents, confident that the market will reach that figure soon. I believe it will provided the holders generally shall refuse to sell for less, but no one can prophesy with any cinfidence what the farmers will do in the matter of holding. It is quite certain that the market price from now until perhaps August 1 will be materially affected by the reports received in regard to the area planted this year. If these shall indicate an unusually large area, especially if it shall appear that such area shall have been planted in good shape, resulting in good stands of healthy plants, and, in addition, if the reports show very large sales of fertilizers, the tendency of prices will be downward and it will be impossible to counteract that tendency. It will be a natural consequence. Bad seasons, disasters, etc., of one sort and another may result in a "low condition" in July and August and the market may possibly react favorably. But we don't want good prices to be contingent on bad conditions and the prospect of a short crop. The farmers should not plant a large area and then, each for himself, hope and pray that the general conditions and accidents that affect the yield of the coming crop shall be such as to cause a short crop—excepting on his own farm. It is to be suspected that some will do that very thing, i. e., plant a large area, hoping that others will not be so shrewd as he, as has been done in the past. But it would seem that such a "stroke" as that has been tried so often that even "Hans Spiegleberger," would recognize the long ears of the animal he so often has represented.

The simple truth is that every farmer should act for himself, while perfectly willing to cooperate in the general movement to keep down the area in cotton. Acting for himself, the policy should be adopted of increasing the yield per acre on a smaller area, the aim being to reduce the labor cost in the aggregate and to increase the yield per acre. It appears that some farmers intend to greatly increase the per acre application of fertilizers without, at the same time, reducing the area. Not a few farmers have desired to know how to increase the yield to one bale per acre on land that "usually produces 500 to 800 pounds of seed cotton with 200 pounds of guano per acre." I do not hesitate to say that it is in most cases very doubtful whether such an increased yield per acre can be profitably forced in one year by applying a large quantity of fertilizers on such land.

The "safe and sane" policy is to plant only such land in cotton as can be made to produce from three-quarters of a bale to one bale and upward by the use of a moderate amount of fertilizers, say 300 to 500 pounds per acre.

Land that will not, unaided, produce more than 500 to 600 pounds of seed cotton per acre would be better to sow in peas or sorghum or some other crop that may be consumed on the farm and not contribute its quota to swelling the aggregate output of cotton on a given farm and the general aggregate crop without a dollar's profit in a single bale. The only effect of such cotton is to increase the main crop and decrease the price and swell the aggregate of individual losses.

SWEET POTATOES—SOME POINTS OF VALUE.

(By Bryan Tyson, Pinehurst, N. C.)

The sweet potato requires a warm climate. Therefore, if plants be transferred too early from a hot bed to a cold soil they are apt to be stunted and as a result start off slowly.

A Hot Bed Superseded—The following plan will virtually supersede a hot bed, especially in the central and southern portion of the sweet potato belt:

Construct a bottomless box of proper size and depth by placing boards edgewise and securing them with stakes driven into the ground. Then place in the box green pine tops to the depth of about 1 1-2 feet, wet with water and pack down. Then place on the tops soil to the depth of about 3 inches. For this climate, said preparation may be made the last three days of March or early in April.

In a few days a gentle warmth will be developed. The seed potatoes should then be placed in the box to the depth of 6 to 8 inches and covered with wet cloths. Tepid water should be occasionally applied to the potatoes. It will be well to use a thermometer and keep the temperature between 70 and 90 degrees. If the temperature rises too high reduce with tepid water. Sprouts will soon start, when the potatoes should be taken from the box and planted as follows:

Construct in the usual way a suitable number of ridges. Then make holes of proper size 2 to 3 feet apart, in the tops of the ridges. Place a potato lengthwise the ridge in each hole and cover lightly with soil. The covering may then be completed with a proper quantity of well rotted chip manure placed over each potato. The manure will designate the locality of the potatoes, thus facilitating the application of water when needed.

If preferable, fresh stable manure to the depth of a foot may be substituted for the pine tops. It should be properly wet with water when being placed.

The object of the above preparation is to develop a growing state and thus prevent the potatoes from rotting after they have been bedded. More than this, proper tests have shown that potatoes prepared as above will produce draws from ten days to weeks earlier than potatoes bedded in cold soil with an insufficient quantity of manure to develop the necessary warmth.

Sweet potatoes are preferably planted on a legume sod, such as cow peas, soy beans, crimson clover, hairy vetch, etc. If any of said crops be properly fertilized an ample supply of nitrogen for the next crop will be drawn from the air. Said crops should be turned under after maturity.

In order to correct any excess of nitrogen that may have been drawn as aforesaid from 700 to 800 pounds per acre of a fertilizer containing potash 9 per cent and phosphoric acid 6 per cent should be broadcasted, preferably a few weeks before planting.

The following materials mixed are the equivalent of said fertilizer:

For potash use muriate of potash from 120 to 140 pounds.

For phosphoric acid use acid phosphate 305 to 350 pounds or dissolved bone from 260 to 300 pounds or bone meal 375 to 425 pounds.

It is very necessary to give enough potash and phosphoric acid to the sweet potato crop. If these mineral fertilizers are lacking, a maximum yield cannot be made, while an excess will do no harm; it will remain in the soil for the benefit of the next crop.

If the potatoes be not planted on a legume sod add to the above fertilizer nitrate of soda 110 to 125 pounds or sulphate of ammonia 110 to 125 pounds, or dried blood 175 to 200 pounds. Apply in drills, mix with the soil and ridge thereon, preferably a few weeks before setting the plants.

When sprouts from the potatoes appear above ground they should be properly cultivated. When sufficiently large to transplant, thin by drawing about one-half, remove the shanks, in whole or in part, and transplant. Either plan is far preferable to setting the entire shanks.

When the residue of vines attain a length of 3 to 4 feet remove the vines by cuting above the first leaf. Then cut them into lengths of three leaves and transplant, leaving one leaf or joint above ground. One or two vines may be left attached to each potato to make a crop without cutting or transplanting.

The stubs will make a second crop of vines, which should be cut and transplanted by July 1. Then remove the stubs and surplus sprouts, throwing both away.

Other things being equal, the yield from vines, cut as aforesaid, will be about 35 per cent greater than from draws planted with the entire shanks, and the potatoes will keep better.

In a proper test the top ends of vines exceeded the residue of cuttings in yield over 12 1-2 per cent. These bud ends should be 6 to 8 inches long without regard to the number of leaves they contain. They should be set perpendicularly no deeper than is necessary to cause them to live well. They should be properly watered, but the wet soil should not be pressed around plants of any kind.

Comment—In my own experience, not growing for an early market, I have never found it expedient to endeavor to "set out" potato slips very early. The sweet potatoe plant is exceedingly tender and sensitive to cold and should not be subjected to the probability of a light frost or even to a succession of cool, chilly mornings. More than once I have given away the first "draws" because I considered it too early to transplant them to the open field. The same is true of the tomato, with this difference: that the number of tomato plants desired is comparatively small and it would not be a big job to grow them in a hot bed and shift to larger pots until well advanced and "hardened" off until after May 1.

EDITOR.

(1) NITRATE ON COTTON. (2) SICK HORSE. (3) SORGHUM FORMULA.

G. H. M., Red Spring, N. C.—1. You speak of putting about 25 pounds of nitrate of soda "in along with the seed." Do you roll the seed with the soda and plant with planter? Is there not danger of the nitrate killing the seed?

2. I have a horse about seven years old that I have recently put to hard work on the farm, he having been used entirely for driving heretofore. Since plowing him regularly, he has lost his appetite and won't eat enough to keep him up. Have changed his feed several times to tempt him, but failed. Please give me a remedy, something that will make him eat. I want to again express my indebtedness to you for the valuable information I am derivig from your editorials and answers to questions in Farms and Farmers of The Constitution.

3. Give me, please, a formula for mixing a fertilizer for growing sorghum cane for forage, to be mixed from cotton seed meal, acid and kainit, and state how much to apply per acre, black bottom land, clay subsoil, been cleared about three or four years.

Answer—1. My practice has been to strew the nitrate along in the open furrow with the seed. Twenty-five pounds of nitrate per acre would be more than you could use in rolling with the seed. I have applied several hundred pounds per acre of a fertilizer containing nitrate by means of a machine that sowed both seed and fertilizer through separate spouts. You may just as well scatter the nitrate along immediately over the covered seed, as it will dissolve in a day or two and sink down into the soil.

2. Give your horse about 1 1-2 pints of raw linseed oil at a dose. After the oil has operated have ready a mixture of 4 ounces each of pulverized saltpeter and copperas divided into twenty-four powders. Boil a teacup of flaxseed to a pulp in a gallon or two of water and while hot pour it over one-half pail of bran and when cool put in one of the powders and give it to the animal as a bran mash. Repeat daily until all are given.

3. For sorghum on the "black bottom land" mix 200 pounds each of acid phosphate and cotton seed meal and 100 pounds kainit for eac hacre or a less amount if you like.

BLIND DRAINS.

"Drains," Grahamville, Fla.—In a recent number of the paper (which has been misiald) you gave an inquirer some information as to draining land and invited him to visit the station farm and see what had been done there in that line. Will you please tell me in making covered drains or blind ditches, with poles, what is the best size poles? Will small pine saplings, 3 or 4 inches in diameter, answer by putting more of them in? And about how long ought such drains be expected to last? Your answer will very greatly oblige.

Answer—As a matter of fact, we have ceased to use poles for constructing a drain conduits, finding the plank boxes 2 1-2 inches square in the clear answer much better. But poles are much cheaper and in wet under draining will last a long time. The poles may be 3 to 5 inches in diameter and the more the better, but it is usual to put down two side by side and one in the middle above the two down. Have them straight and knots smoothly trimmed off so that the open joints will not be too large.

HOW TO PUT IN FERTILIZERS.

J. D. E. Jr., Blair, S. C.—Being an old subscribers to The Constitution, I write to the Farm department to ask a few questions in regard to putting down fertilizer. I am going to use ammoniated goods under cotton this year, as I could not get the meal and acid to mix myself. I have two grades of guano, an 8.65-2-2 and 8-3-3. Now I want to know if it is best to apply all the guano in the bedding furrow or make two applications of it? I have run up all my cotton stalks with a middle buster plow, and it looks as if my land was ready to plant, but if not how would I want to put the guano in these middles and bed on it? Some advise me not to put my guano in those deep furrows, as it would leach out before the cotton would get any benefit. Do you think I will get the guano too deep in the ground? I have been advised to not put any guano in the bedding furrow, but put about 100 pounds in with the seed, and then after I get the cotton hoed out and just as I get ready to put the dirt back to the cotton put balance around the cotton just in advance of the plowman. I expect to use only 200 pounds per acre. Please advise me how to apply the guano to get the best results. Thanking you for any information that you may give.

Answer: As a practice I do not advise dividing the amount of fertilizer into two or more doses, even when the total amount will be as much as 500 or 600 pounds per acre. But I do advise (and practice it myself) the putting of 20 or 25 pounds of nitrate of soda in the furrow with the planting seed. I do this with a guano trumpet. Or, as I have done it, you may strew the nitrate along just over the covered rows of cotton, either immediately or within three or four days.

It is not probable that you will get your guano in too deep in the way you propose, but while I am doing it just that way (running a scooter plow through it before bedding), I use 500 to 600 pounds per acre. There is no danger of the fertilizer leaching out. Put it in, run a scooter furrow through it (which will lift it up), and bed on it. But I would prefer to cut down the area—if not willing to buy your guano—and double the amount per acre. It would not hurt to get the whole 200 pounds in with the seed rather than bed in so small an amount.

FERTILIZER FOR PEANUTS IN SANDY LAND.

J. F. E., Elloree, S. C.—What would be a good fertilizer for pinders on light land? I want to use 500 pounds agricultural lime per acre, besides the other fertilizer. Should I mix it or use the lime as a top dressing?

Answer—I recommend a mixture of 1,000 pounds of acid phosphate (h. g.) and 100 pounds of muriate of potash (or 400 pounds kainit). When the nuts come up, top-dress with 30 to 50 pounds nitrate of soda per acre along on and between the plants when the latter are not wet with dew or rain. Two to four hundred pounds of the above mixture may be used. It would be well to apply the lime along the beds, or where the nuts will be planted, on top of the ground, and harrow it in lightly. Then open and plant the nuts.

(1). COTTON SEED DROPPER. (2). HOW TO APPLY 800 TO 1,000 POUNDS FERTILIZER PER ACRE. (3). COTTON CHOPPING MACHINE.

T. S. M., St. Stephens, S. C.—(1). Is there a cotton planter that will drop cotton seed in hills, without sowing in between from 10 inches to 24 inches? If there is, where can I get it?

2. In applying 800 to 1,000 pounds fertilizer to the acre, which is the best way to apply it for cotton?

3. Is there any machine that will chop cotton out to a stand, any width?

Answer—(1). There have been such machines made and used, and probably are to be had now, but I do not know where nor of whom you may order one. The manufacturers should advertise them.

2. I would apply one-third of the total amount between the bedding (center) furrow and the two listing furrows, running a scooter furrow in each after depositing the fertilizer.

3. Such machines have been made by the dozen, but if any has proven entirely acceptable, I am not aware of it.

(Why not give your name, as the invariable rule of all publications requires.)

TO DESTROY MOLES.

Bryan Tyson, Pinehurst, N. C.—Some years ago I had a piece of land that was much intested by moles. I virtually exterminated them as follows: I mixed a property quantity of arsenic with corn dough. I then made holes in the roads here and there, deposited a lump of dough and so covered as to exclude the light. Two applications did the work. The poison should be deposited early in the season. Moles do not receive it so rapidly after food becomes plentiful. Groundpeas are said to be an excellent medium for conveying poison; moles are very fond of them. I have never tried any poison other than arsenic.

COTTON SEED MEAL TOO HIGH.

E. O. R., Lamison, Ala.—As cotton seed meal is so high what is best to use instead of the cotton seed meal, as we must use something else, as I see it, and buy other fertilizers for our customers other than cotton seed meal is my idea. Am I right or not? Please suggest best for us to buy to sell and to use ourselves. With best wishes from an old subscriber and one who reads your work with interest.

Answer—You do not state the market price of cotton seed meal, nor of other nitrogenous fertilizer ingredients. I am therefore not able to say which are the cheaper. Dried blood, tankage and nitrate of soda are the three principal remaining ingredients that supply nitrogen, but I would have to know the analyses of these as well as the prices per ton in order to compare their cheapness compared with each other and with cotton meal. Twenty-five dollars per ton is not an excessive price for cotton meal. To be as cheap as meal at $25 a ton of nitrate soda should be not over $48 per ton, whereas you would have to pay over $50 and probably $55. At $25 per ton for cotton meal the nitrogen (allowing for about $4 worth of phosphoric acid and potash in each ton of meal) would be worth $21, or $3 for each 1 per cent (or unit), there being about 7 per cent, or 7 units of nitrogen in a ton of meal. To compare dried blood with meal multiply the percentage of nitrogen in the dried blood by three ($3) and the product will be the corresponding value of a ton of dried blood. The same comparison may be made with nitrate of soda. For instance, nitrate of soda usually contains about 15.75 per cent of nitrogen. Multiply 15.7 by three and you get $47.25 as the price at which you should get nitrate of soda in order for it to be as cheap as cotton meal at $25 per ton. Dried blood, 14 per cent nitrogen (a very high grade) should sell for $42 a ton. These figures assume that the stuff in every case is delivered at your farm, freight paid.

SELECTING SEED CORN. TERRACING LAND.

A. P. S., Louisburg, N. C.—I am starting out to improve my seed corn. Last year I selected 100 stalks of a one-eared variety and gathered them; the 100 ears weighed 86 pounds. I selected 100 stalks of a prolific variety with two ears on a stalk; the 100 top ears weighed 59 pounds and the bottom ears 57 pounds, a total of 116 pounds from the 100 stalks, a difference of 30 pounds in favor of the prolific. Now I want to ask which is the best to plant of the prolific variety, the top or bottom, or mix both top and bottom and plant. I want you to write something about how to terrace land. A cheap way of making a level; how to use the same on a farm that is a little hilly. I am a small one-horse farmer and read every word you have to say in The Constitution.

Answer—It has never been definitely settled by actual experience whether the top or the bottom ear should be selected for seed. When seeking to develop and fix the tendency to produce two ears, my idea has been to plant the bottom ear, because the bottom shoot is the one that generally fails to produce an ear, when only one ear shall be produced. But I have never settled the matter by actual experiment. See editorial in The Weekly of the 26th instant, about selecting seed corns, and do some experimenting yourself.

I have published a long article about terracing land (giving all details) at least three times within the last four or five years. Write to Brady-Bostrum Co., Atlanta, Ga., for their little pamphlet on terracing.

HISTORY OF A BATTLE WITH A WRONG START

EVERYBODY wants a "visible typewriter," a typewriter so constructed that you can see what you are writing while you are writing it. A very small portion of the public buy "visible" machines, because they cannot get good ones in the matter of typewriter mechanism. The wrong start in making "visible" typewriters began from the ignorance of the promoters of the primitive machines regarding the development of typewriter mechanism of the past. In other words, they did not know the strong points and the weak points of typewriter construction, which the under-stroke machines had learned through thirty years of experience. The Monarch Visible is the first, the only typewriter to utilize, in a front-stroke form, the patented, perfected, broad, pivotal, frictionless type-bar bearings that have been so successfully used in typewriter construction in the past.
